P Preparing for the first day of school, students found that while it was sad to say "goodbye" to the long days of summer, an exciting school year lay ahead.

A After the final bell rang each day, extra-curricular activities began; such as marching band, MACC, National Honors Society, VICA, and drama.

W Working it into their busy schedules, student continually volunteered their services to help out the needy community.

S Sports teams felt the moments of glory as well as the agony of defeat. The football team won big over Cardoza at the Homecoming game, and Webb Donald scored third in the R.V.D. golf tournament. David Kirby and Sonny Ratcliff were named the first male cheerleaders. Wrestling had the record of ten freshmen join the team, while the girls basketball team continued their winning tradition.

A Academics presented students with bigger challenges along with better rewards. In addition to the usual homework, students worked on projects, went on field trips, and gave class presentations.

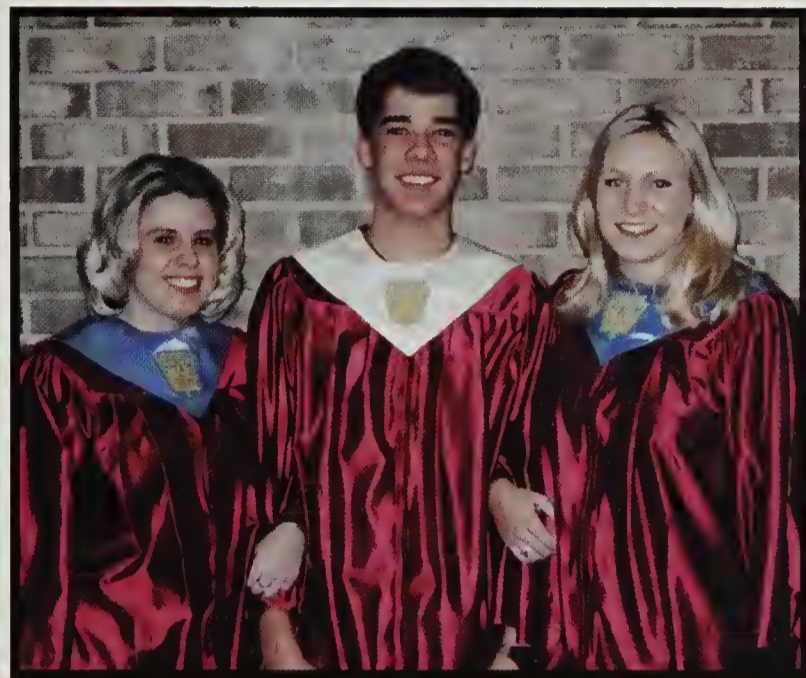

N Nearing the end of school, students thanked the teachers, the faculty and staff, and the administrators for their countless hours spent making the year a successful one.

D Determined to never say goodbye, the graduates fondly reminisced back on their high school memories, as they excitedly looked into the future...

One last picture. Mr. Freeman poses at one of his favorite spots in Germany. "Each time I go abroad, I seem to love it even more," Freeman said.

From the Eiffel Tower in Paris to the beautiful beaches in the Bahamas, students traveled across the world. Germany, France, and even Australia are a few of the countries that were explored this past summer.

Enjoying the trip was the first priority of the travelers. However, after the many pictures were snapped, the souvenirs bought, and the lifelong memories were complete, many enjoyed learning about the foreign country's different cultures and lifestyles. After returning home from Belize, Katie Webb remembered, "Sure, the beaches were fun, but the best thing about traveling is living in a different environment for a week."

True, many dream of living in the exciting city of London or along the relaxing waves in Hawaii; but no matter where one travels over the summer break, the best part of the trip is returning home.

Stayin' Alive

Homecoming week began with an explosion. Monday, though a teacher work day, many students still came out to support their class by decorating the lockerbanks and showcases. "I really enjoyed working with everyone. It was a time for all of us to bond," stated senior Cory Newman.

On Tuesday's Pajama Day, students wore everything from boxer shorts and T-shirts to bunny slippers. "It was a comfortable day; I felt like I was at home in bed," said senior class treasurer Lauren Huff.

Wednesday's activities began with students sporting their favorite college sweatshirts and T-shirts. The Powder Puff game that night topped off the day as the Seniors took the win over the Juniors, 26-8. Amanda Woods said, "It was awesome. We had a great coaching staff and our adrenalin was pumping."

Students participated in Thursday's Retro Hippy Day. From platforms to bellbottoms, you could find just about anyone dressed in their parents old clothes strutting around the halls flashing peace-signs at one another and saying "Far out man!"

On Friday's Spirit Day, students dressed in burgundy and gold. Suzanne Akers and Abbey Atkinson painted burgundy Cougar paws on people during lunch to support the Cougars in the upcoming game against Cardozo later that night.

The pep rally fired up the crowd, whether it was during the spirit contest, the cheerleading routines, or the announcing of the Homecoming Court. "The student participation was excellent," added assistant principal Mickey Hickman.

Later that evening, Cougar fans lit up the stands, cheering and yelling for the football team while they crushed the Cardozo Clerks. At halftime, the court was presented and the royalty was crowned. Amber Bratton said, "It was the greatest feeling because I never expected to win. It didn't feel real, it was like a dream." The victory over Cardozo made a perfect end to Homecoming Week.

Dancin' the Night Away

A classic tradition of PCHS is Homecoming. One last dance for some, but a new beginning for others. It was a night of friendship and excitement that would never be forgotten.

The dance was only hours away and everyone was preparing for the exciting event. Students who attended Homecoming admitted spending from only thirty minutes preparing for the big night to spending all day getting ready for the dance. Senior Tiffany White stated, "I will always remember the fun I had and all the hassle of getting ready."

Couples gathered as the Homecoming Court was announced. Duke was Graham Gravely, escorting Duchess Lea Hallstead. Prince and Princess were Nick Yates and Rebekkah Warburton. Last, but definitely no least, the King and Queen were Richie Hayden and Amber Bratton. Bratton said, "This homecoming was the best ever and being elected Queen by my fellow classmates just added to the excitement."

Look A Little Closer

Have you ever caught yourself taking another quick glance? No way could there be a celebrity on campus. Of course not, it's just those fortunate students who happen to resemble or share the characteristics of movie stars, television actors, political leaders, and music singers.

"I'm flattered when I'm told that I look like Jennifer Aniston, but I'm also proud of the fact that I have my own identity," said Meghan Linkous. Just as beauty is in the eye of the beholder, so is the opinion of a celebrity look-alike. Laurin Richard said, "People often tell me that I remind him or her of LeAnn Rimes, but I don't see it."

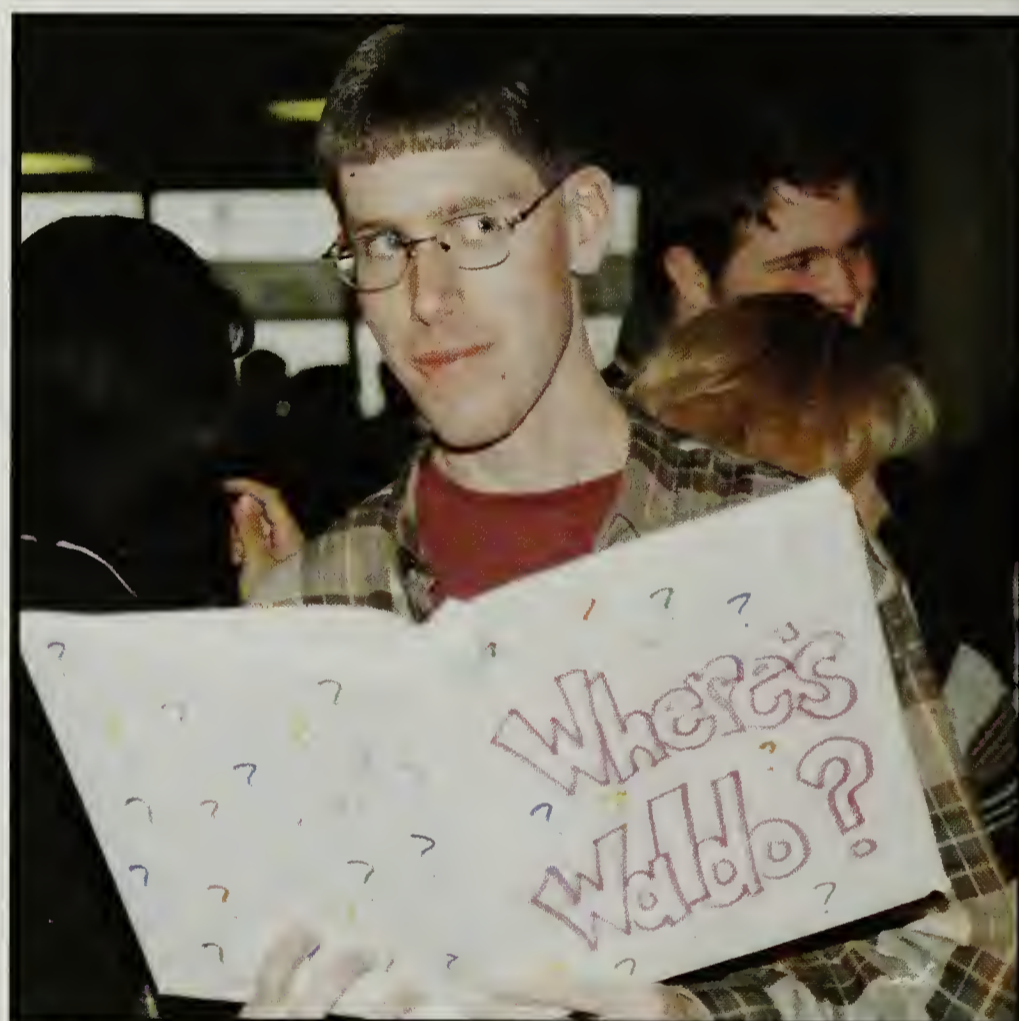

Having the same name as a famous person can also be responsible for causing a stir in the populous. Hearing a familiar name of a celebrity can easily trigger the assumption that the person who merely shares a name, would automatically share other characteristics with that celebrity. "It never fails that when I meet someone, he or she always asks if I have any relation to supermodel Nikki Taylor."

It's an uncanny situation when one resembles another person whom they may never have the chance to meet, but look a little closer, there's much more to these celebrity look-alikes that may meet the eye.

"Do you like scary movies?" Mark Fitzwater harasses people like his celebrity look-alike Matthew Lillard who played Stu in Scream.

Matthew Phillips is a dead ringer of Christopher Castille, Mark from Step by Step.

"You might be a redneck if..." No, Deputy Barry Cox does not have a second job as a stand up comic or his own T.V. show. That's Jeff Foxworthy.

Did you know that Elizabeth Taylor is in the Beginning Concert Choir? She is.

"I'm a barbie girl..." Jennifer Hamblin primps before class just as Barbie would.

"Just because I have the same name as the comedian Mike Meyers doesn't mean I'm always funny," says Michael Meyer.

Not only does Jerry Jones own the Dallas Cowboys, he also teaches Construction Technology.

Look South and Discover

Did you know that only around thirty percent of our nations population is left-handed? People such as Pablo Picasso, Ben Franklin, Babe Ruth, Jerry Seinfeld, and the president of the United States, Bill Clinton, are all publicly recognized southpaws. Will Hager, Tony Dunford, Mike Meyer, and Jeremy Cox represent a few of the eight percent of the left-handed population on campus. It used to be that left-handed people were thought of as sinister. People who wrote or worked with their left hand were considered to be working against the good of the world; many left-handed people were socially condemned and banned from society. Today, in the United States there is nothing that is held against the left-handed person; however, there are still customs around the world which condemn the supposed 'evil' left-handed.

Most Asian countries believe that the left hand is polluted. Although this seems absurd in the United States, there are still countries which socially condemn anyone that is left-handed. Children in one of these countries that begins to learn to write with their left-hand are severely punished until the use of the right hand is the only comfortable use that they know.

Recently though, studies show the world is out to get all lefties. Left-handers have shorter life spans, partially because the world is designed for right-handers, which makes southpaws more accident prone.

"Sure, being left-handed, there are lots of parts of life that are harder to get accustomed to but that just makes life a little more fun," according to Carla King.

Todd Coe
Allison Cox

"What's this?" Carla Hallstead left-handed? Well she wasn't last year but decided to return to her left-hand after years of being right-handed.

Thomas Farmer and lefty band members take a break to run through a part of the marching show. "That sounds great guys, keep it up," says Farmer.

Heather Mitchell shakes it up while making icecream in chemistry class with Ms. Hallstead.

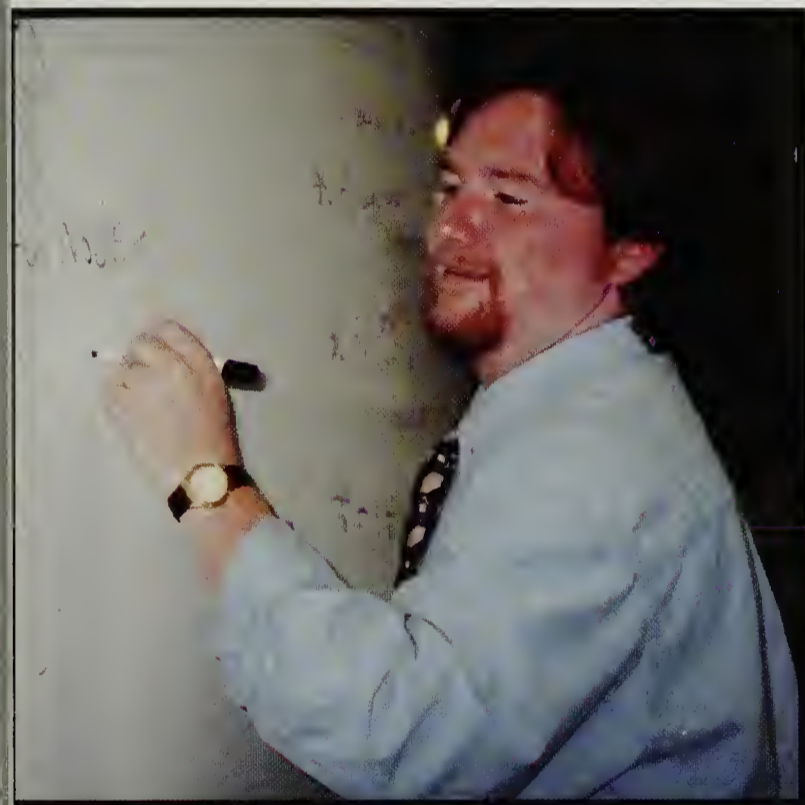

Kristin Smith works diligently to complete an essay test in Mrs. Mammi's class.

Tige Saltz finishes a painting in art class. "Being left-handed is just one little thing that sets me apart," says Saltz.

Nobles, what? Scott Peterson gives his students some notes for a quiz.

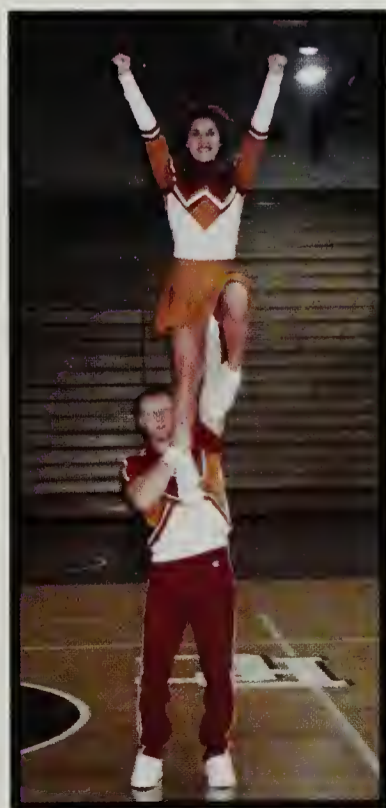

The extremely talented Willie Hale eats with one hand, and fills out an order form with the other. "Being ambidextrous really helps when you need to do more than one thing at a time."

Jerome Thomas finishes up a piece in art class. "Painting can be really messy, especially when you are trying to be neat and you keep dragging your hand across the wet paint."

Woah! A guy cheerleader, David Kirby, supports Beth Garland in one last attempt at perfection before the debut of the new routine.

"Being left-handed doesn't make life difficult, just interesting," so says Allison Cox as she lays out the golf spread.

Paws for the Cause

All work and no play? Maybe not. Many students volunteer weekly to help out in the community. From making up canned foods to working at a nursing home, students always find time to help others.

Clubs like HOSA, DECA, SSC, and Leo give their share of help through Make-A-Wish, Senior Road Clean Up, and Adopt a Grandparent programs. Samantha Deguise, HOSA President, said, "There are several students that worked at the Air Show and the Flea Market. We even have some students who volunteer daily at the hospital, including a few assisting in the emergency room."

Students in the community service class, Service Learning, also experienced their share of lending a helping hand. Sara Holt, a first year student said, "Through Service Learning, I have found the need for volunteers in the community." Many students work at schools, offices, hospitals, the Red Cross, and other area organizations and businesses.

Community service is fun and challenging. Life has rewards, you just have to reach out and grab them.

Look at That Cougar Spirit!

Not often could you find the entire student body gathered together in one place. However, this was accomplished throughout the school year with various assemblies and pep rallies. Such events gave students a break from school, as well as the chance to participate in activities pertaining to them.

The Homecoming pep rally got students pumped for the night's game and the upcoming dance. The winners of each class were also announced for the Homecoming decorations, along with the spirit stick competition. Matt Mansell said, "The Homecoming pep rally gave me a chance to be with my friends in a more relaxed environment."

Other assemblies took on a more academic approach. At the Investments in Learning assembly there was an inspirational speaker as well as the announcement of the Most Valuable Cougar, Brian Clymer. Clymer said, "It was an exhilarating feeling knowing that not only my teachers, but my fellow classmates, had bestowed this honor upon me." The National Honor Society's assembly was also held during the spring to induct upcoming and present seniors.

The Senior Honors assembly closed out the school year with academic awards and scholarship recognition. These events not only brought students together but provided memories that are sure to last a lifetime.

Taking a Look Down Bourbon Street

What a mystical masquerade! Some may have believed they were spending the night in New Orleans, living it up at Mardi Gras, or simply taking a stroll on Bourbon Street. From slow dancing to riding the train, it was a night of fun activity! "Prom was beautiful this year; it really made me stop to think about the one I love," said Jerry Martin.

The gym was decorated to the hilt. From ceramic, feather, and paper masks to the tall, shining palm trees, not an inch of the gym was untouched. Everyone who was involved in making the night possible should be greatly commended. The junior class and officers planned the occasion, art classes made the mural, and many teachers were a great help too, just to name a few of the contributors.

All too soon, however, the evening came to an end. The night that took months of planning was over and the students realized that this time of their lives had come to a close. The wonderful event will never be forgotten!

"Paws"ing for the Past While Looking Toward the Future

"Congratulations!
Today is your day.
You're off to great places!
You're off and Away!"

June 9, 1998, was a day filled with many mixed emotions. The evening was wonderful, however, and luckily was not disturbed by the potential rain. The stadium seats were filled with parents, friends, and families who rejoiced, cried, and thought back to times past. Ideas of college, work, and families to come lingered in the students' minds as they took their last look at the highschool campus and some of their old friends.

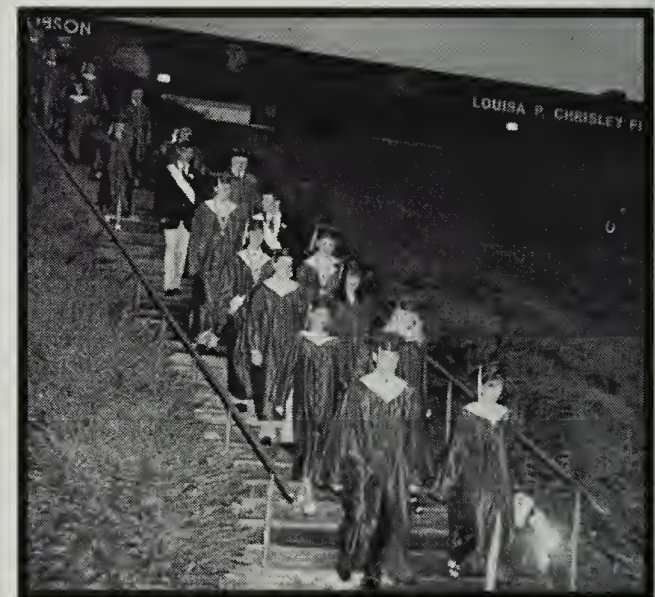

Hard work and dedication paid off for Brent Surber and Josh Hall, who shared spots for co-Valedictorians, as well as Ben O'Dell, Salutatorian. As Mr. Lindstrom said his closing words and pronounced the seniors graduated, the caps were tossed and everyone realized the 13 year long goal had finally been accomplished.

"So . . . be your name Buxbaum or Bixby or Bray or Mordecai Ali van allen O'Shea,
You're off to great places!
Today is your day!
Your mountain is waiting,
So . . . get on your way!"

Language Lapse

As class begins, the ticking of the clock commences for the next hour and a half. The beating of Poe's tell-tale heart begins too, intriguing listeners. Intensity increases with every passing minute and each pulse of the heart.

The variation of activities in the English pod extends far beyond Poe's mystical writing. A shaking student stands before the class presenting an explanatory speech. Across the pod, a freshman class takes on the roles of Romeo and Juliet, while the class next door finishes their vocabulary test and heads toward the computer lab to work on the new computers.

Just as every beat of the heart drove the narrator insane, every tick of the clock taunts the waiting students. As the bell rings to end class, students race toward the doors; though eagerly awaiting another class with another beat.

Paint By Numbers

When most people think of math, their thoughts immediately jump to numbers, adding, subtracting, multiplying, and dividing. However, math is a lot more than it seems. Although there was still a lot of individual work and homework required, almost all of the teachers used cooperative learning activities which were very popular among the students. Heather Buckner said, "I like groups because if somebody doesn't understand, there are others around to help you."

If someone mentioned the word, "art," one might think of pencils, crayons, brushes, paint, or even markers. But, art includes much more. People in art class enjoy charcoal drawings, freehand sketches, and clay models. Also in art class, students worked on finger paintings, drawing from a photograph, and worked to perfect shading and coloring techniques. Jessie Spraker said, "I take art because it is easy and fun!"

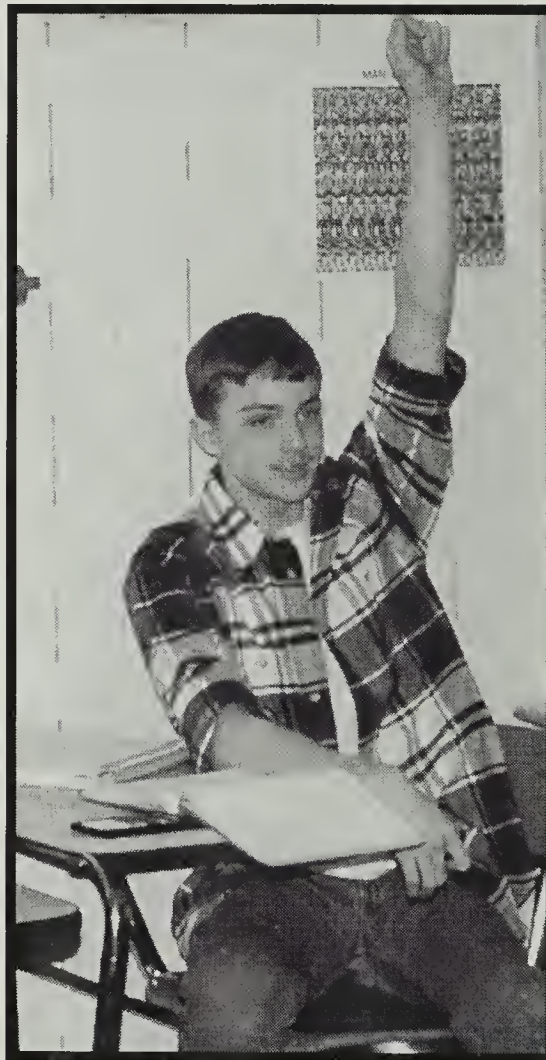

The Math Pod was overall an interesting place to be. Activities ranged from students multiplying exponents to beginning artists starting to paint by numbers!

What caused the San Andreas Fault? Any earth science student should be able to tell you the earthquakes over time caused it. A student enrolled in physics could tell you that when an acceleration graph falls below zero on the X-axis, the car is either slowing down or going in reverse. These are the core classes that most students take.

Electives such as meteorology and astronomy/geology are also offered in the science department. Each class has its own set of questions and answers.

Paws and Look at the World

From cultural exploration to studying unconscious behaviors, the Social Studies Pod is filled with many educational varieties.

While some like learning about different countries, other enjoy focusing in on the past. Many students participate in history and government classes, along with psychology and geography classes. Lauren Huff said, "I find these classes challenging as well as educational. I feel that the environment of the Social Studies Pod allows learning to be comfortable."

Students also take part in foreign languages such as Spanish, French, and German. "Language culturally enriches student life and helps my thinking process," stated third year Spanish student, Meghan Linkous.

Whether it's playing softball, chatting with friends, or learning the basics of health and driver's education, most students would agree that Health and P.E. is a great way to break up the day.

With sports like mat-ball, volleyball, basketball, and tennis who could be bored in a class like this? April Adams said, "I just like games in general, so mat-ball and softball are right up my alley."

Additionally, Health and P.E. gives one a chance to learn about first aid, study skills, and for the sophomores, driver's education. It not only gives students a chance at fun recreation, but teaches lifelong skills as well.

Paws for Press

Filled with new faces, the publications were up and running at PCHS. The PC Tribune, Inklings, and the Cougar Pinnacle were written, maintained, and printed at the responsibility of the students. Each publication carried its own unique nuance.

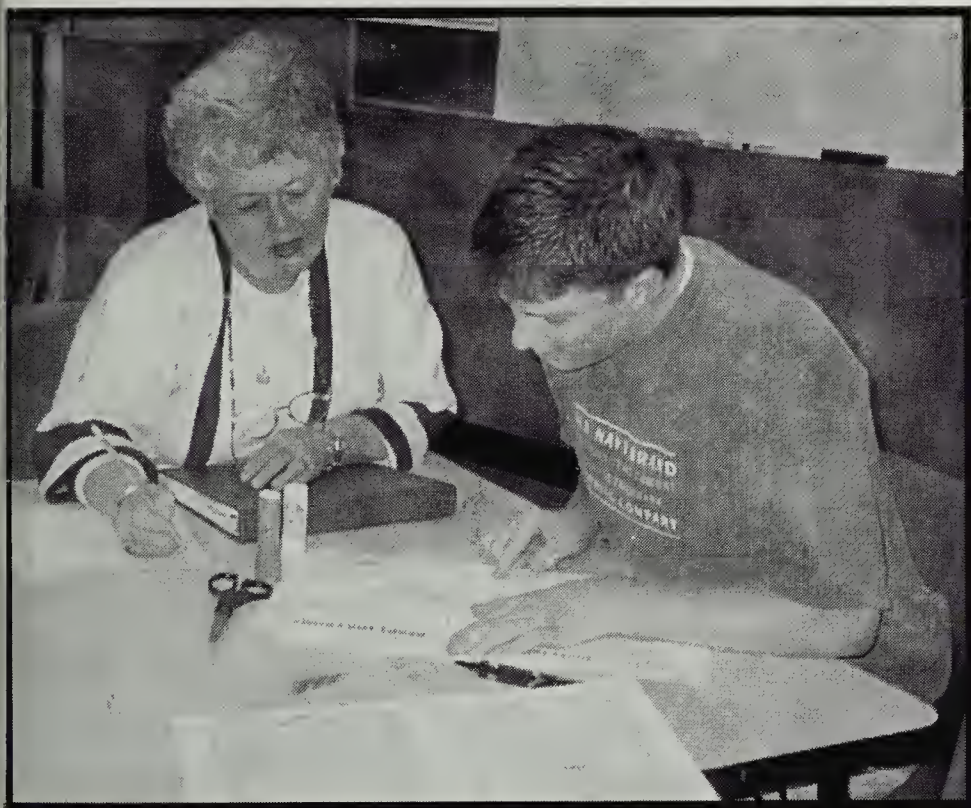

The PC Tribune, advised by Ms. Glenda Roudebush and led by editors Jessica Akers and Chris Thompson, covered the news and know-how of the school. Journalism students worked feverishly to produce a monthly paper with informative articles and the voice of the student body. Daniel Currie said, "The nice thing about journalism is it gives the students the opportunity to experience the various realms of expression in media."

The literary arts magazine, Inklings, was staffed by approximately 30 students who spent hours evaluating literature and artwork created by their peers. Under the counsel of Ms. Virginia Mammi and the leadership of editors Jenny Rowh and Jason Welch, Inklings was printed and distributed at the end of May. According to Matt Mansell, "Inklings has served to broaden my academic horizons through the readings and creative writings that are featured in the meetings."

The Cougar Pinnacle staff was responsible for the production of the yearbook. Beginning at summer camp and not finalizing until after the end of school, the yearbook staff operated full force in order to ensure fast delivery. First year advisor Erin Wigginton and editors Ginger Glenn, Allison Cox, Kristen Stauss, Janna VanDyke, Star Lester, Bekkah Warburton, Laura Linkous, and Becca Conner worked closely with the staff members to offer new additions to the book.

Hard work payed off in the end, and has been demonstrated in the quality of the publications. Students, advisors, and contributors rewarded themselves at the annual spring picnic in May when they received recognition for their accomplishments.

Looking Into the Past

Lights . . . Camera . . . Action. This years Drama Club and combination of classes set the stage with three wonderful productions of well known historical classics. As the year began the group began preparing for their first performance ONCE UPON A MATTRESS, commonly known as the PRINCESS AND THE PEA. As the year progressed the group had to decide on a one act play to take to competition. For leaders of the groups this was a distressing time, however Matthew Hancock handled the situation quite well; he just wrote the one act. The one act was known as THE AUDITION, not only was this play a success at competition it also gave Matthew several oppurtunities to expand his acting career. The year ended with one of the most difficult pieces the high school has seen yet, the musical CAMELOT. The show featured two new actors, Benjamin O'Dell, and Jennifer Rowh; Jenny, who played Guenevere, was a rookie to the stage and Ben had held roles in previous plays, but nothing of this extent.

As the academic and dramatic year came to a close Mr. McCoy took his crew and a few extras . . . something every show needs . . . and headed to New York. While in New York they spent several days exploring the city itself while taking in several excellent Broadway shows. The group returned with enlightened dreams and aspirations of being on stage once more.

Now the group steps in a new direction as it says farewell and BREAK A LEG to several of the school's stars . . . Good Luck Seniors . . . you will be missed.

Pausing for Interpretation

Band. What is band? A group of people playing various instruments together? Band is a place where peers can work together to make music and lasting friendships. Students who take a part in band share a common interest and a bond that will last beyond their performing days.

This year, under the new direction of Grayson Fore and Tom Springer, the marching band took many awards for their fantastic performance of Star Wars. The show included solos, duets, and flying rifles that topped the band with many leading bands in the area. The drum majors for this years show were; junior Samantha Corder, sophomore Elizabeth Webb and senior Katie Webb. The marching band hopes that next year will bring them better luck and better understanding of the performance techniques.

The Concert and Symphonic band also did a wonderful job at conveying various messages through a different type of music. The band touches the hearts of many parents and friends during all the concerts.

Although the band department is going through major renovations, the beat still goes on making many paw prints on the field of the Cougar stadium and the Little Theatre stage. Band is the place where friends are made and music is a way of life.

From yards of material to costumes and rifles, the Color Guard can be found perspiring from the arduous practices while they prepare for upcoming events, such as competitions and half-time performances at home football games.

While not given much recognition, many don't realize the dedication that is required from each participating individual. The fundamentals alone include syncrasy, balance, and percision. These, combined with determination and dedication, produce a successful squad.

Pauses in Reality

Being one of the high school's three departments excelling in the performing arts, choir allows musically inclined students to express themselves through vocal melodies. The expression, according to Senior member of the Advanced Concert Choir, Kristin Smith, "Choir provides the release from academic pursuits vital to personal well-being." The choral department is divided into three performing ensembles, Concert Choir, Jazz Choir, and Advanced Concert Choir. The first allows students a more generalized excursion into musical theory and vocal efforts, while the remaining choirs are specialized and involve great commitment from those invited by audition. These choirs, in union, hold two annual concerts: one occurring in the fall and the other in the spring. The first performance of this year, while commanding an attendance of over six hundred persons, exhibited the wide variety of musical styles accomplishable by these ensembles. The flawless singing of a classical piece from Handel's MESSIAH, entitled And the Glory of the Lord, proved to be the highlight of the evening and the excitement of the choirs.

Comprised of persons ranging in age and talent drawn from within the high school, the choral department acts to showcase and refine several young virtuosos. Recognized by such organizations as Virginia Honors Choir and All-Virginia Chorus, many students are often invited to participate in this fellowship of student singers from around the state. This year, senior members of the Advanced Concert Choir, Jenny Rowh and Taylor Baldwin attained such honors.

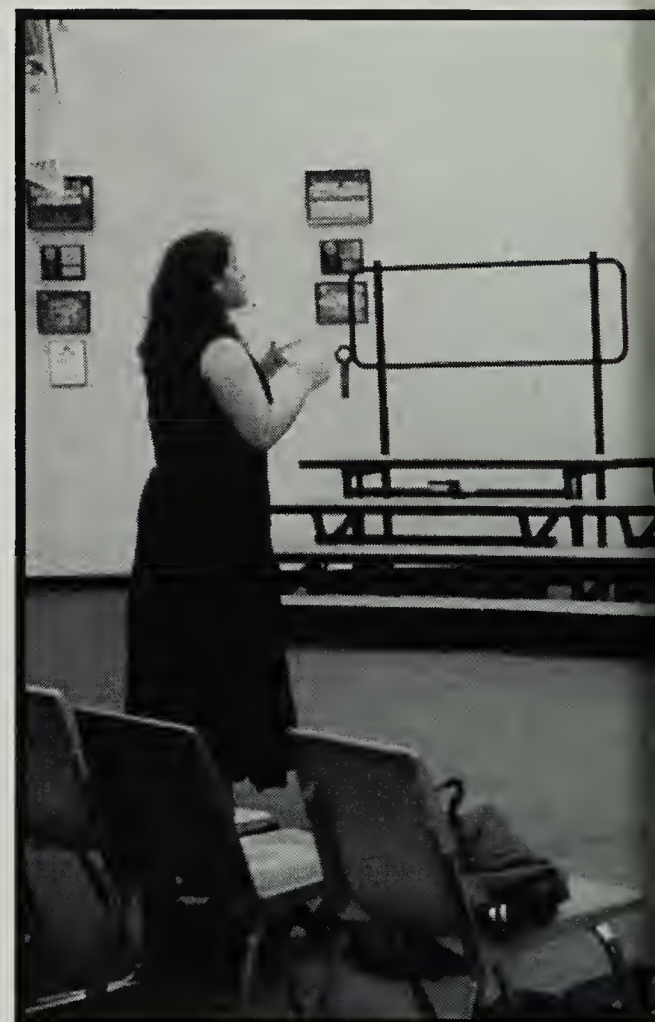

On another plain, choir offers the opportunity of comradship between persons of different ages. The familial setting contrived by this mixing of students provides an environment capable of simultaneously eliciting great fun and musical skill. As stated by junior member of the Advanced Concert Choir, Eric Southern, "I get to meet new persons who share my interest in music both in classes and in state-wide activities." The cumulative honor and sense of belonging offered by the choral department makes it one of the finest pursuits in the genre of the performing arts.

Looking for Opportunities

With only four years in high school, how could a student possibly explore all of the great vocational opportunities . . . vocational classes. From family relations to electricity, to typing and accounting, paws and take a look at all of the different fields one could tap into.

Students in fashion merchandising enjoy learning about how one's appearance makes a difference, and how to be more polished. Students spend time learning about computers in many vocational classes. Cory Newman said, "I like computer software because the computer field is very interesting and promising." Others agree with Cory, saying that exploring different sites on the computer, and playing games they created between assignments really makes school interesting.

Continuing in the broad spectrum of classes is Communication Systems. This course helps to teach a student how to interact with different types of computers and techniques which can complete the same task, with a better result. Students learn how to use different print techniques to create professional documents to developing their own film for private or public use.

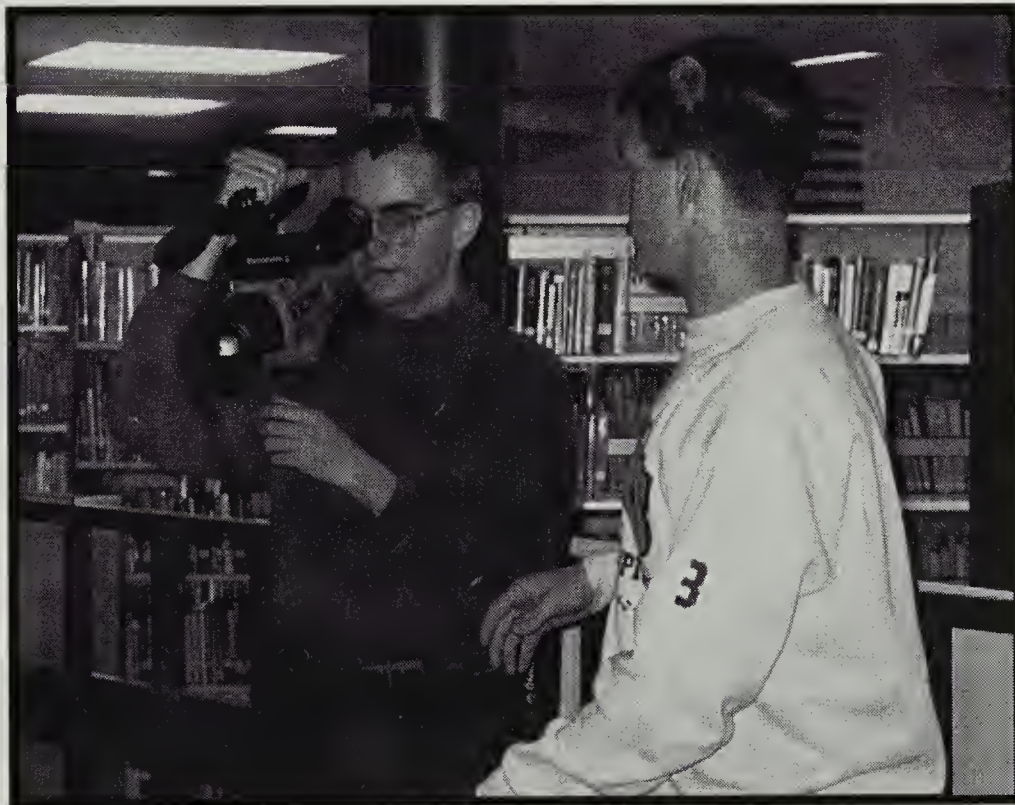

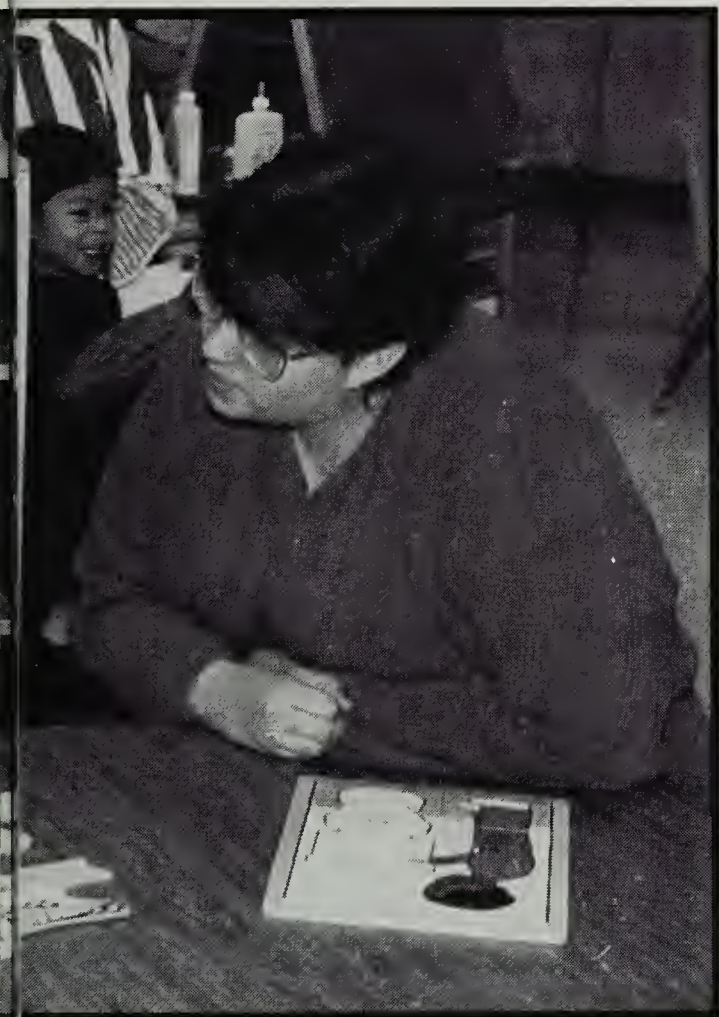

Whether one is concentrating their time learning about fashion, computers, electricity, child care, cars, or business all of the vocational classes are worth looking into.

Look at the Variety

From styling hair to fixing a broken carburetor, the vocational department offers over twenty different areas in which students can participate. Many agree that the classes located in the vocational building provide an escape from the required academic courses. Vocational education gives students a chance to excel in a field that they enjoy and may even continue with as a career.

Whether it is electricity, child care, horticulture, or drafting, everyone can find an elective that suits him or her. Mr. Gary McCoy, the marking teacher, stated, "The best thing about the vocational department here at PCHS is the vast variety we have to offer. No two classes are the same!"

Paws, Look, Surrender!

No retreat, no surrender! That was the motto of the varsity football squad this year as they fought for and won their seventh straight Roanoke Valley District Title. After a long and hard season, the varsity team was labeled as the "Comeback Cougars" because of their "refuse to lose" attitude, which helped compel them to six come-from-behind victories, including two in overtime. Jamie Rupe said, "It's a real pressure situation when you're in overtime; one little mistake could cost you the whole game."

The Cougar offense was led by quarterback Dorian Hendricks, and the big play, quick scoring abilities of Craig Hodge and Kwasi Scott. The defense was anchored by a strong defensive front led by Robert Rogers and a line-backing core that would come up and lay the "big hit" on an opposing runner.

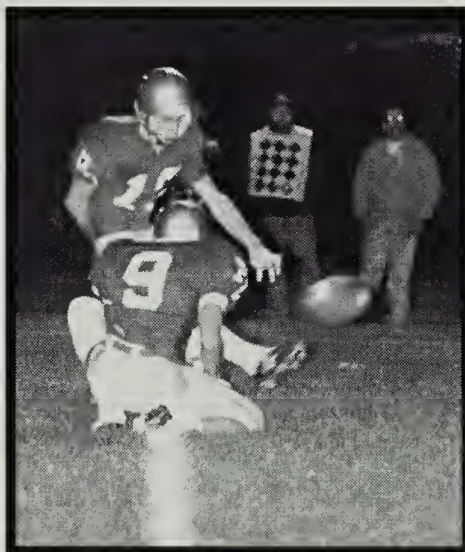

After one of the toughest seasons in history, the Cougars battled long and hard, always giving 110%. Brian Clymer said, "Football is a sport in which you have to give all of your effort. This team has given a maximum effort in practice and games since the beginning, and it was justified with our successful season."

Go, big maroon and gold! This Varsity Cheerleaders chant could be heard throughout Dobson Stadium on Friday nights.

The squad put in countless hours of practicing and preparing banners for each game. Exposed to bitter cold, the cheerleaders were always there to encourage the Varsity Football team. "No matter if we were winning or losing, we always kept our spirits up to keep the fans involved," said junior Suzanne Akers.

Looking To Gain Yards

The Freshmen and J.V. Football teams both had exceptional seasons. The Freshmen worked hard to go undefeated. The players had to work together to overcome their middle school rivals and play as a solid team. They broke the ice with many difficult practices and tried hard to become true Cougar football players. David Hale said, "Playing football in Pulaski is one thing you can really take pride in."

Although the team was small, the J.V. football team always came out on top. One advantage of having a small team was that every player had the opportunity to dress with the varsity team. Mark Fitzwater said, "Because of the size of our team, everyone had to give 110%." With their dedication, skill, and determination, these two teams are sure to carry on the school's great football tradition for years to come.

Not Just Another Smiling Face

Casey Burns, Emily Hurst, and Amber Mannis show off their talent by holding Jaclyn Compton in an elevator.

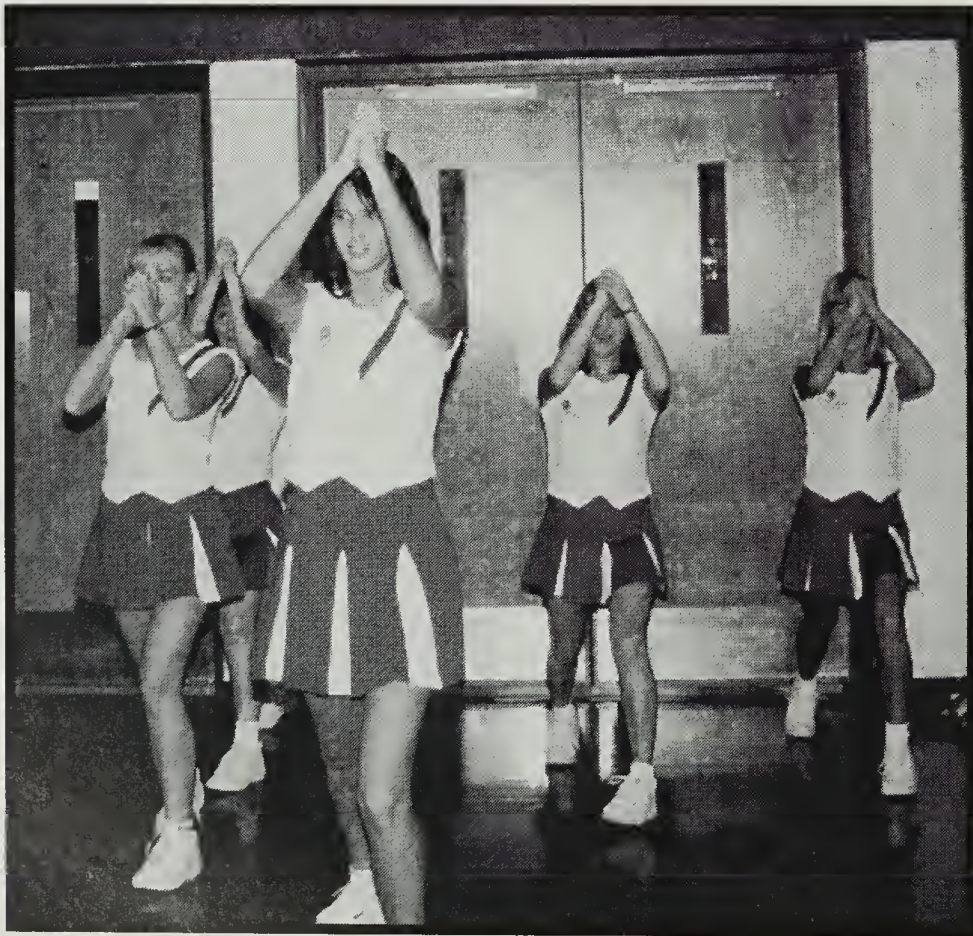

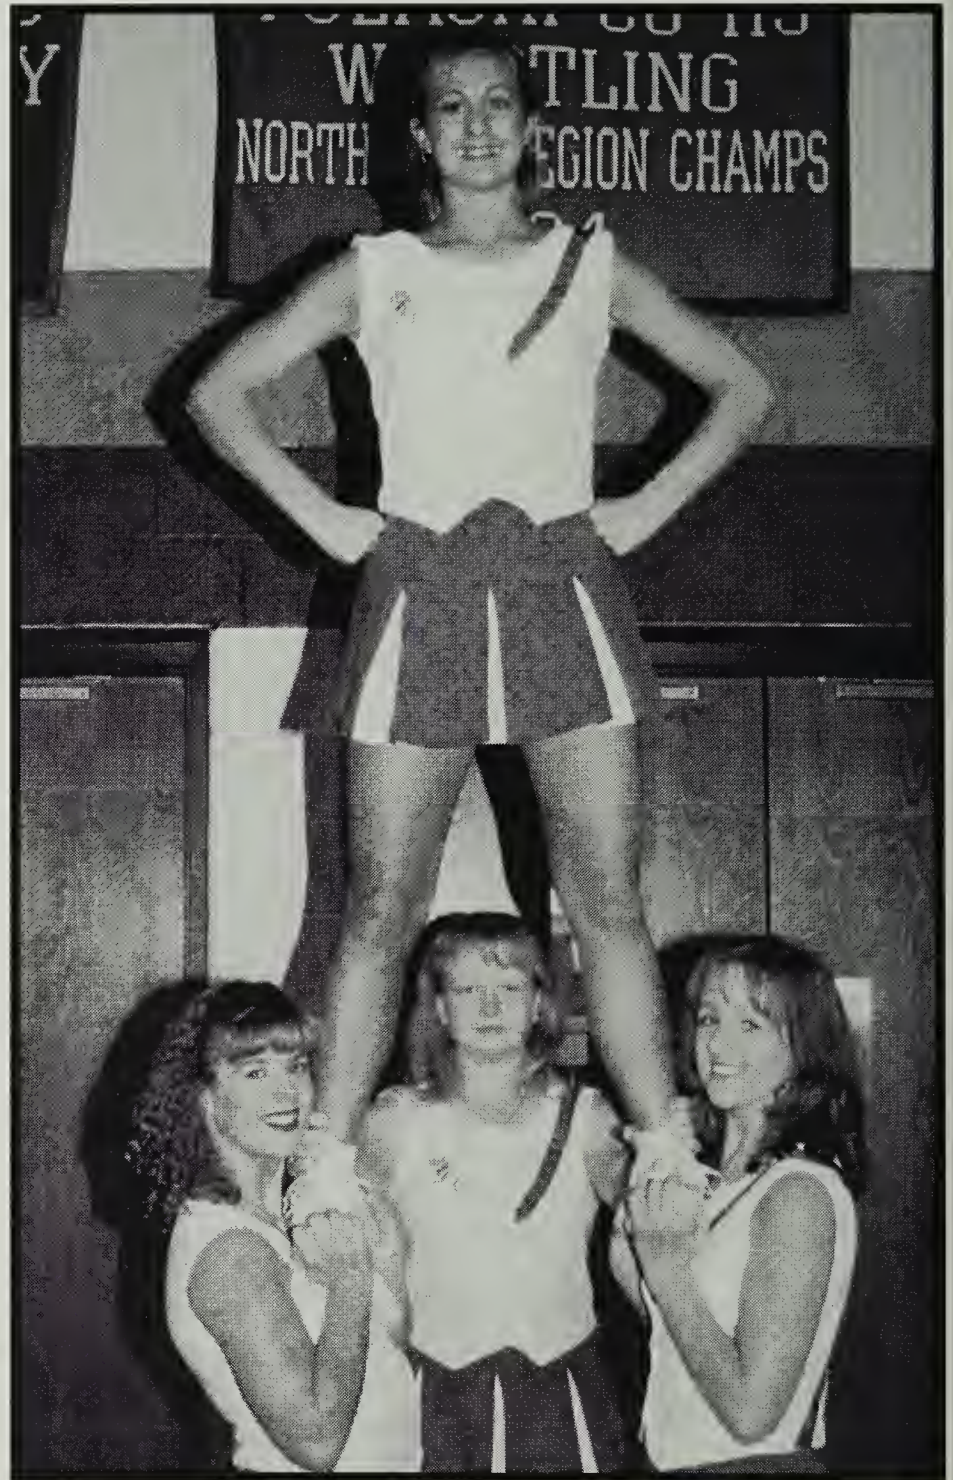

Some people say that it only takes a smiling face to become a cheerleader. In reality it takes true dedication, lots of time, patience, and the ability to compromise with the others on the squad. The J.V. and Freshmen squads worked hard at improving their motions, team spirit, and stunting.

For the Freshmen squad, this season was one they will definitely not forget. "This year is a big difference from last year. We had to concentrate more on our cheers and dances, and make sure they were done correctly," said Stephanie Webb.

The J.V. squad had to face a big obstacle at the beginning of the season. They had no coach. Luckily, a coach was found on the day of pictures, and she carried them through a tough season. Cheering their first games in the rain was definitely a very different experience. "I thought that we would stop cheering but instead we just kept on rooting our team to victory," said Steffanie Marchese.

At the end of the season, both the J.V. and Freshmen squads would say that, "It was all worth it." Whether the team was winning or losing, the girls always had a smile on their faces and tried to keep their fans and players in high spirits throughout the season.

Stop and Volley

With the team spirit of Amanda Hallstead, the leadership of Whitney Childress, and the dedication of Shara Wenrich, the girl's tennis team continued to strive for excellence. The Lady Cougars battled various injuries, inclement weather, and long, tiring practices to make this season a rewarding one. Sophomore player, Courtney Vaughan, remembered with a smile, "Sure, tennis is a lot of hard work and effort, but winning a tough match makes it all worth it!"

Under the coaching of David Conner, the freshman class, with the most rookie players ever, made a large addition to the team. Ninth graders Ame Tuck, Jamie Welch, Amy Vandusen, and Jessica Edwards contributed to the team's victories; but everyone agreed that Laura Gillmore deserved the most recognition as she received the award for "Most Improved." Coach Conner said, "Tennis is the only team sport that takes so much individual talent. But, it definitely takes teamwork, and luckily we had it!"

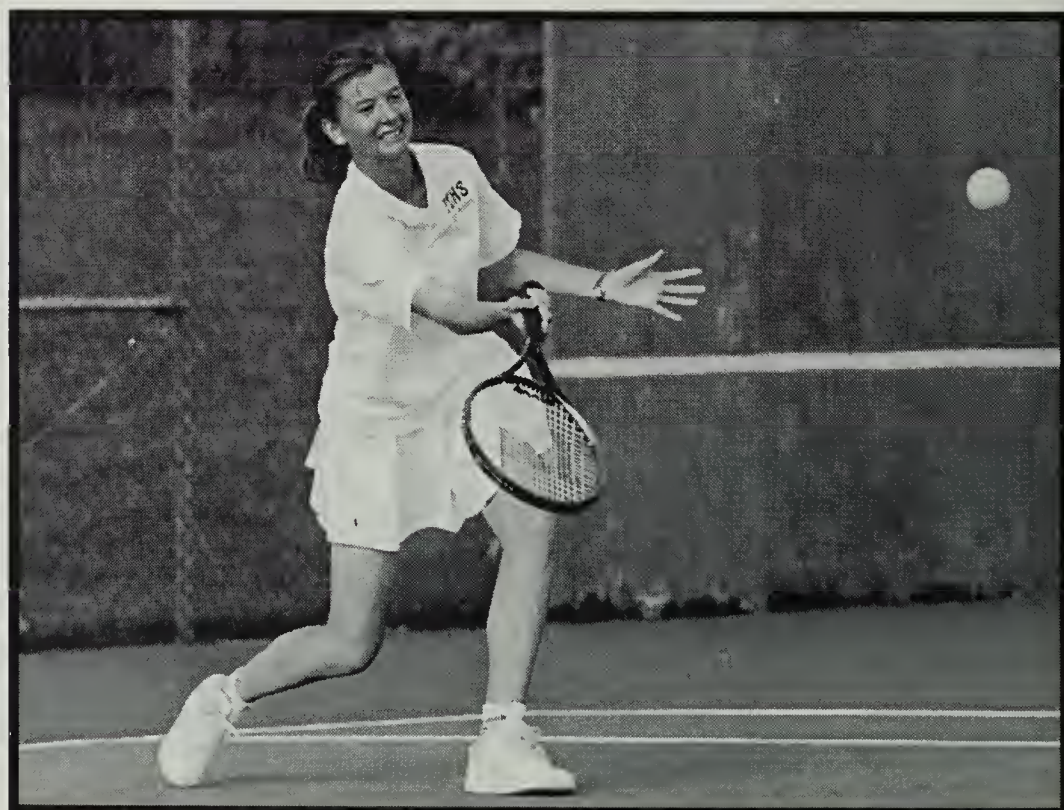

Tennis, like other teams, not only brings together certain students who share the same talents, but helps form lasting friendships, as well. From the wild bus rides to cruising the mall, the girls greatly enjoyed their time spent together. Captain Priya Acharya, recalled, "I can't believe that after four years of playing, it had to come to a close. I'm really going to miss it. Thanks, girls, for making my senior year the best!" It is this positive and determined attitude that will ready the girl's team for next season.

Silence fell across the crowd of fellow golfers as he stepped up to the tee. As he looked down the fairway, he noted the pond on the right side of the green and prepared for the first stroke of the match. "I love golf. When I was eight, I used to drive the cart around while my dad played," said Matt Mansell, a third-year member of the team.

Golf is unanimously known for its great "away" matches. Everyone likes to play at home, but nothing compare to a team's bonding time. As a first-year team member, Daniel Goff experienced his share of "team time" with the upperclassmen. "I really like golf trips, especially the trip when I got locked in the port-a-potty at Roanoke Valley Country Club."

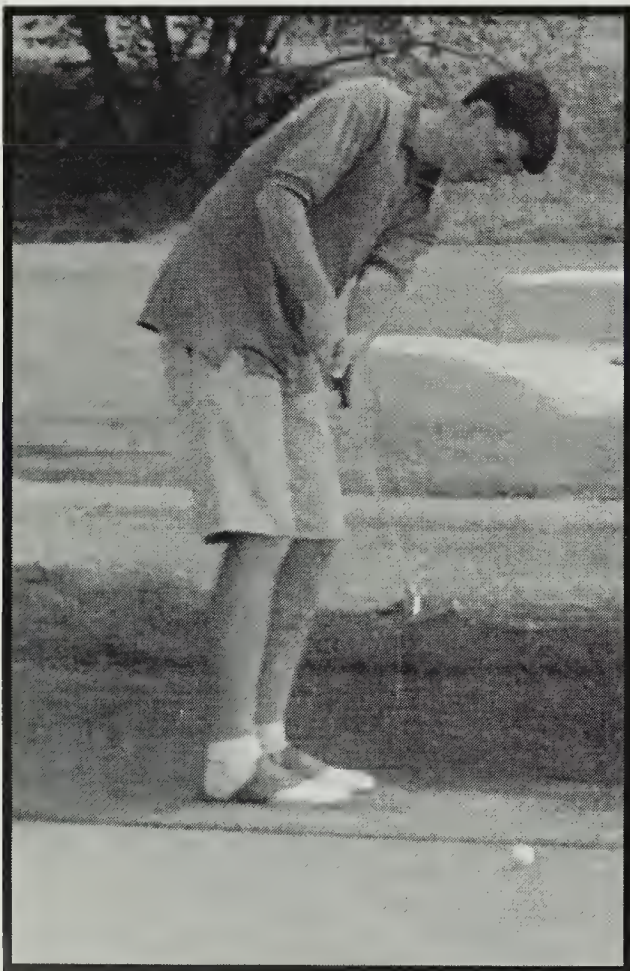

Danny McKittrick, team co-captain took an interest in the game only two years ago. However, he enjoys the sport because of the great team support. Justin Haynes, captain, said, "The laid-back attitudes help members stay relaxed during a match."

Bump, set, paws! Almost everyday after school, the Varsity Volleyball team could be found practicing in the gymnasium. Whether they were spiking, setting the ball, or just running laps, the girls were constantly busy.

Volleyball was more than just playing a game; it was long, hard hours of practice to perfect skills. After joining the team, the girls practiced rigorously everyday to build confidence and ability. With dedication, the eleven member junior varsity team committed themselves to aggressive play and improved greatly. It takes teamwork and commitment to succeed at any sport, and this is especially true for volleyball. "Every member really supported the rest of the team, put a lot of energy into learning the sport, and worked well together," stated coach, Angela Harris about the J.V. Volleyball team.

Volleyball was a great team experience and a wonderful way to make friends. It was also an excellent way to stay in shape. Courtney Baldwin said it best, "In volleyball, not only did I grow in a relationship with teammates, but I stayed in shape, all in fun."

Erin Howell summed up the events of the season. She said, "We had great spirit on our team and our games kept you on the edge of your seat."

The swim team has had their share of fun times, sad times, and embarrassing times throughout this season. Long bus trips, talking with friends, dancing, singing, eating, and being too hot or too cold are some of the fun times the team remembers. Sad times include getting sick after swimming a long race, or being too sick from the winter bugs going around to even get into the pool. Embarrassing times like finishing last in a race, false starting, and falling off the bus are some more of the memorable moments. The team went through a lot this year, but they all commented that they loved every minute of it. "I think that our team is one of the closest groups of people in the high school; we're like a big family," said Jessie Spraker.

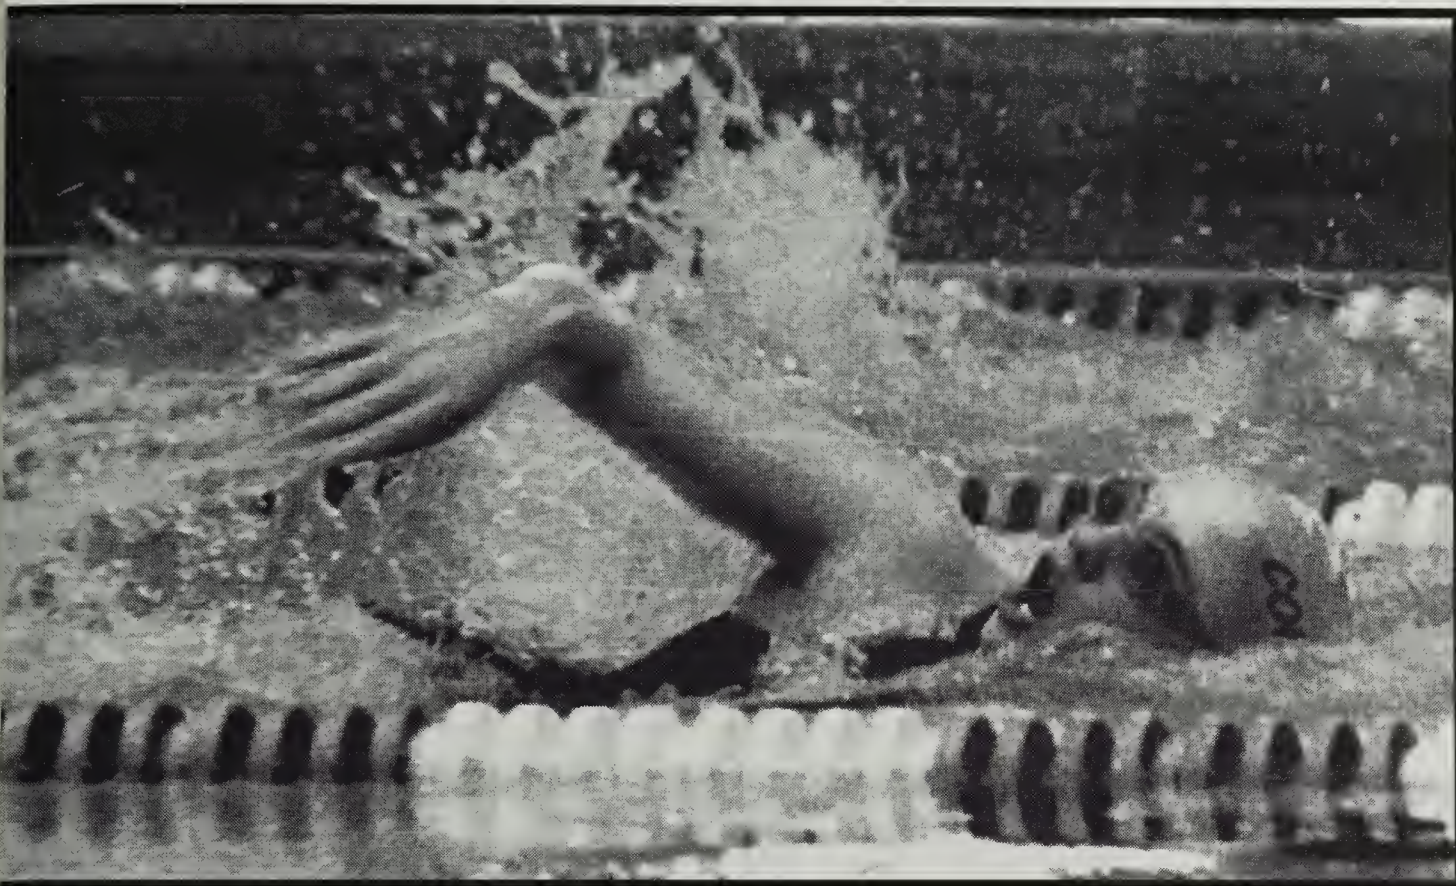

All the swimmers put their best effort into their events and came out with a third place title in the Roanoke Valley District. The boy's team consisted of five members, seemingly small but loaded with quality. The girl's team, although not big itself, was comprised of dedicated swimmers. The captains of the team were seniors Graham Gravely and Janna VanDyke. Sixteen of the 22 swimmers qualified for the Northwest Regional Meet which was held in Manassas. Graham Gravely qualified there for the State Meet at Virginia Beach.

Almost all of the swimmers' times improved as the season progressed. Much effort was put into this accomplishment because of the many new team members and the cut in practice time. The new coach, Jack Leahy, congratulated the team for their progress but stated that this was a rebuilding year. He, as well as the members, have much hope for what the future will hold.

Wrestling is a sport that demands both physical and mental strength. Each member of the team shows his devotion by providing his share of time, effort, and energy. This is made evident by their collective presence at six two hour practices each week.

The wrestling season proved to be a year of rebuilding. While the members worked hard and put their all into the matches, their efforts were largely unrewarded. Not all was lost, however, as Troy Barkley and J.R. Easterling both advanced into the second day of competition. On top of this, the members learned a lot and are now much more prepared for next season. Senior Kevin Liu predicts, "I expect the wrestling team to be very strong in the future."

Paws for a Timeout

The Varsity Boy's Basketball team lead off the winter sports schedule. This year's squad was required to take a timeout to reorganize itself. The basketball team consisted not only of new players but a new head coach as well. Mr. Mark Casseri, along with his great coaching staff, took on the difficult task of coaching thirteen boys to victory. "Our new head coach has brought a more enthusiastic attitude to the team," stated team captain Danny McKittrick.

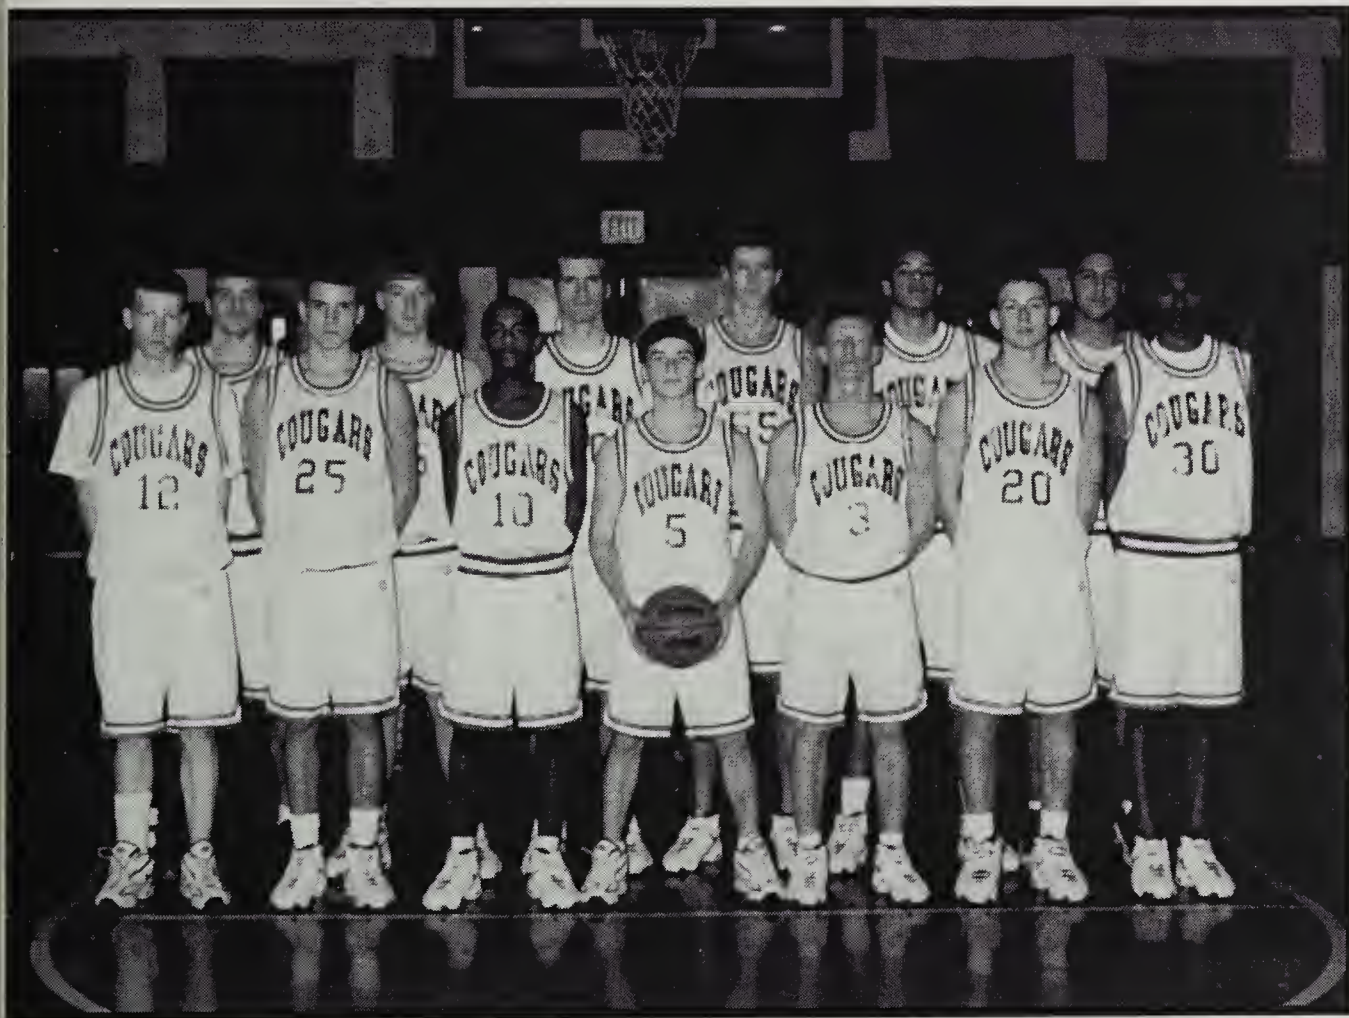

Robert Rogers and Dorian Hendricks were named to the All-Roanoke Valley District first team. First team Honorable Mention honors were given to junior Justin Peek. Rogers led the Cougars in scoring with 327 points in regular season play. Hendricks was first for the team in steals with 37, and the second leading scorer with 219 points. Peek was the team's assist leader with 68.

The team had great leadership from its five seniors, Danny McKittrick, Robert Rogers, Jerome Thomas, Drew Viers, and Chris Wright. Although these seniors will be moving on, the greatness of this years' underclassmen should do very well in the future.

Paws, Pivot, and Shoot

Playing two to three games weekly, the varsity girls' basketball team has worked hard to unify their team and accommodate the loss of a multitude of senior players. Under the leadership of Buddy Farris, Scotty Scott, Lane Penn, and Harriet Farris, the Lady Cougars have come from separate backgrounds to forge a team capable of success. "Our team has the 'want' to win," said Junior Amber Hanks.

Despite numerous injuries, this "want" along with two hour practices and dedication prevailed, leading the team past defeat to ultimate victory. Fortunately, the team will only lose two of its valuable members and will not have to overcome the difficulties it encountered earlier this season. The Lady Cougars have enjoyed their time, both bonding and competing on the basketball court, and have great expectations for next season.

A "Pawsitive" Change

The Varsity Gold and Burgundy Cheerleading Squads started their season with a welcome change this year; the addition of two male cheerleaders. The guys enabled the squads to enhance their stunts and building, as well as their overall appearance. "Sonny is a great asset in our squad. It definitely wouldn't be the same without his great smile and positive attitude," said Emily Hale.

The Varsity Squads opted to use NCA videos to learn new material rather than go away to camp. This was a time not only for learning but a time for the squads to bond and get to know one another better. "We had our own exclusive camp this year, which really brought us all a lot closer," said Crystal Reynolds.

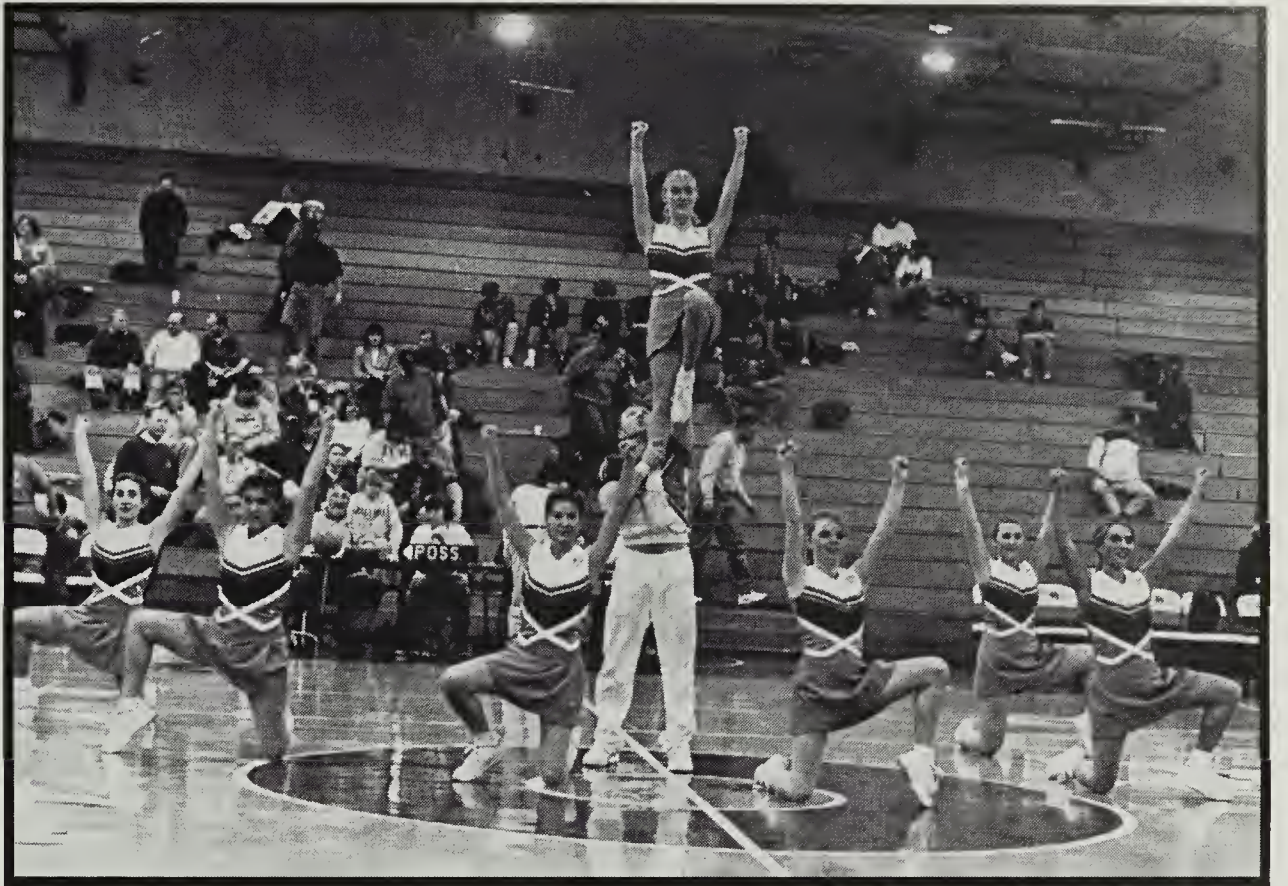

The squads could be found throughout the school having bake sales and making posters to support their teams. Over Christmas they even sponsored a family in the community. "I think the greatest thing that we did was sponsor the family for Christmas. It gave everyone who participated a greater appreciation for what we all have," said Meghan Linkous. With pride and dedication they proved that being a cheerleader meant accomplishing much more than just cheering.

What a cutie! Crystal Reynolds said, "Being the cougar was lots of fun and a great experience!"

Rising to the top, the Cardinal Squad is all smiles as they complete their cheer.

Raising the roof, Sonny Ratcliff said, "I am so proud to be one of the first male cheerleaders."

Go Cougars! The Gold Squad strikes a pose while performing at half-time.

Paws for the Hoops

The ball silently arched through the air on its way toward the basket, slowly circled the rim and dropped through the net to score the winning point.

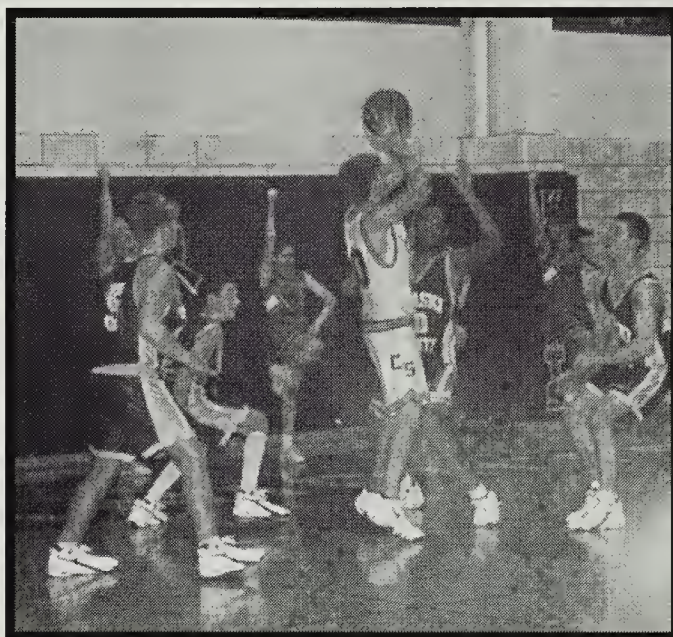

The boy's freshman basketball team started off with a 6:00 a.m. practice directed by Kevin Alexander. All of the hard work, dedication, and exceptional attitudes led the team to great wins. Daniel Goff said, "We worked hard to do our best and we work well together as a team. I look forward to playing with these guys again next year."

Competition is what motivated the J.V. boy's team. "A lot of commitment and strain on your body is required to play this sport," said Mike Tilley.

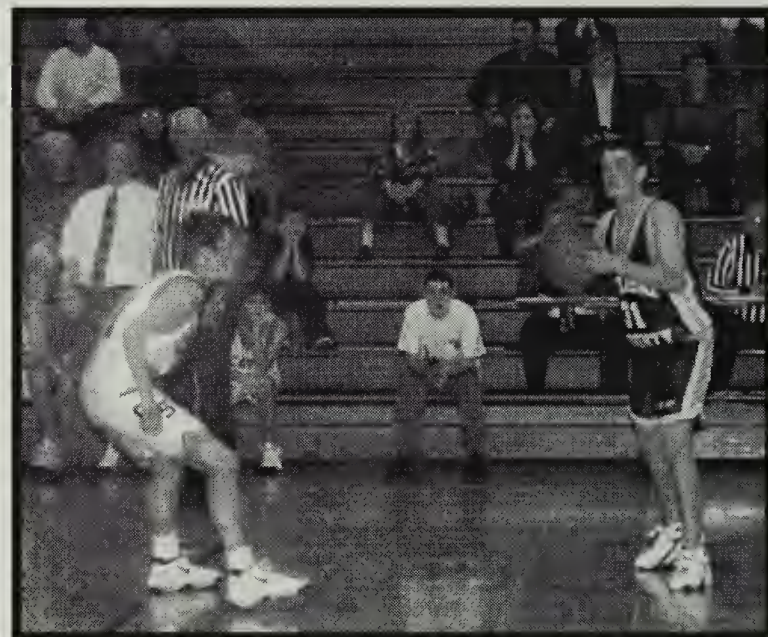

During practice and warmups, the players worked on lay-ups and jump shots. Brad Johnson said, "Playing basketball is the love of my life." The J.V. team finished the season with a positive attitude winning their last two games. With only the hopes and dreams of a winning season, the basketball teams practiced their hardest and played their best to make dreams come true.

A "Pawsitive" Finale

Every year for a J.V. team is a rebuilding year. This year's team did a great job of coping with the changes. Hard practices straining athleticism and teaching team cooperation occupied a great deal of after school time. The dedicated members stuck through the difficult moments, however, and came out on top. Their season was great! With a 12-3 overall win-lose ratio, they proved that they had what it takes.

Work was not all that comprised their season. Along with it, long bus rides, win celebrations, and making some lifelong friends were just a few of the fun events that made it all worth it. The excitement will never be forgotten, and this team is sure to go on and be great varsity players for the school.

Running on the Paws

A new meaning was taken into the word track with this year's team. This was due to the efforts of new coach Jeff Levy, who brought the team together as a single group fighting for a single goal, competing to the best of their ability. In attempts to strengthen the team Coach Levy would join them for runs from the high school to Cougar X-Press via Slaughterhouse Road. With the help of Coach Levy, the team adapted well to a tough work schedule. The boys' team finished fourth in the district and the girls' finished fifth. "Next year we are going to be stronger and faster than ever, I'm really looking forward to a great season," stated sophomore Stephanie Marchese.

Never "Pausing" in the Face of Challenge

Though the soccer team started the season at a great loss after 11 seniors graduated last year, they were able to regroup quite well. The boys practiced everyday for two hours during the season, doing everything from drills to endurance and even building team unity.

Chris Petit, the team's new coach, was looked upon highly by the team. They enjoyed spending not only serious game time on the field but also fun times off the field. He enjoyed coaching the team but also stated this was a rebuilding year and has great hopes for the future. Andy Pratt stated, "I enjoy the game itself. The competition, the heat of battle, and the friendships I made are the best part."

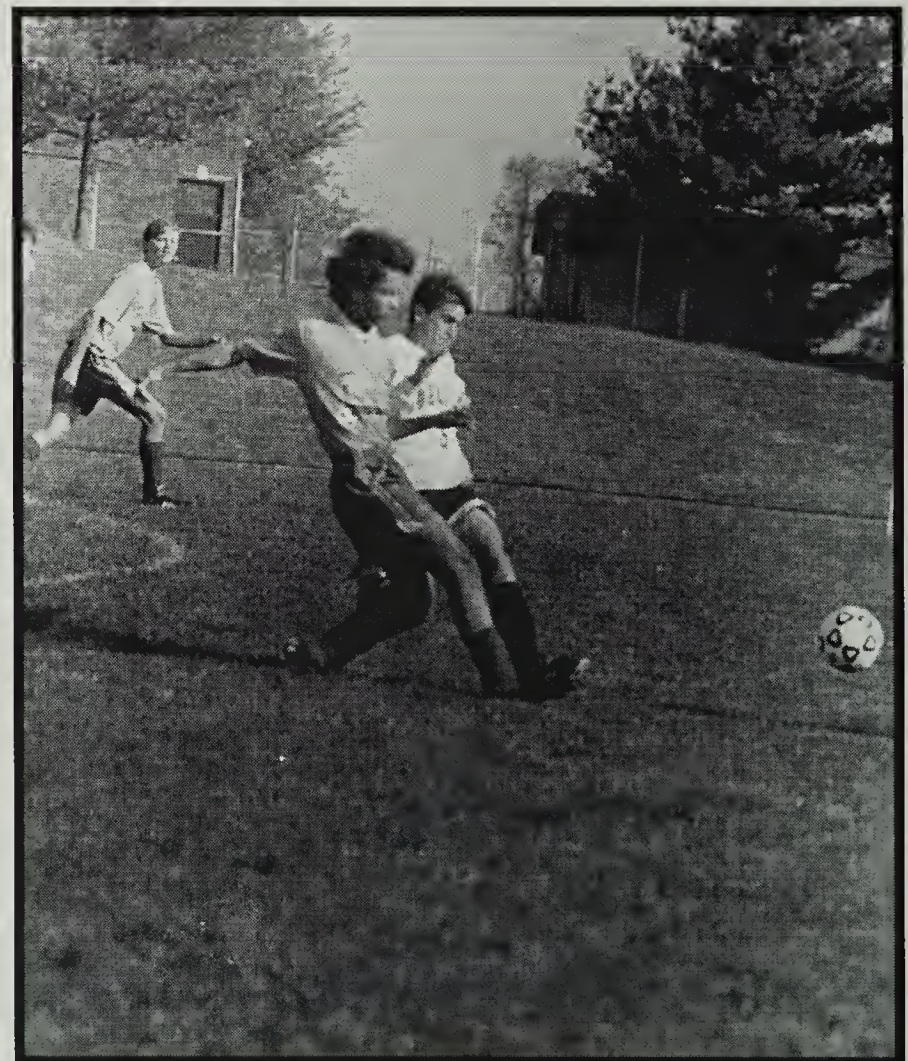

Despite any losses, the team was pleased with the improvement they achieved as the season progressed. As they look forward to next season, they will also always look back on the fun season and the challenge of the game.

Paws, Look, and Shoot

The stress was mounting, the team was incorporated as one, and each player was striving for one goal, the win. As the game into overtime, the fans moved to the edge of their seats. Would the game end in victory or defeat . . . the girls only had a few minutes left to prove their skill.

This was the scenario of the girl's soccer game against Carroll County, which eventually ended in a tie. The girl's team this year showed a great strength in uniting for the win. The group communicated well and functioned exceptionally well on the field as a team. This being the team's second year on the field gave them an advantage, but still being a rookie team held them back in competition. Senior Katie Rose said, "I was really excited about this year and we really did well, I'm more excited for next year's team, they are going to be great."

Practice, always beginning with running laps, push-ups, sit-ups, and jumping jacks. Then began the drills, formations, plays, passing and shooting. To finish off the practice, more sprints and a pep talk from the coach. The endurance was the strong point of the team. The coach believed in substantial amounts of running which reflected in performance. "I think the running benefited the team; it definitely didn't hurt," stated sophomore John Nester.

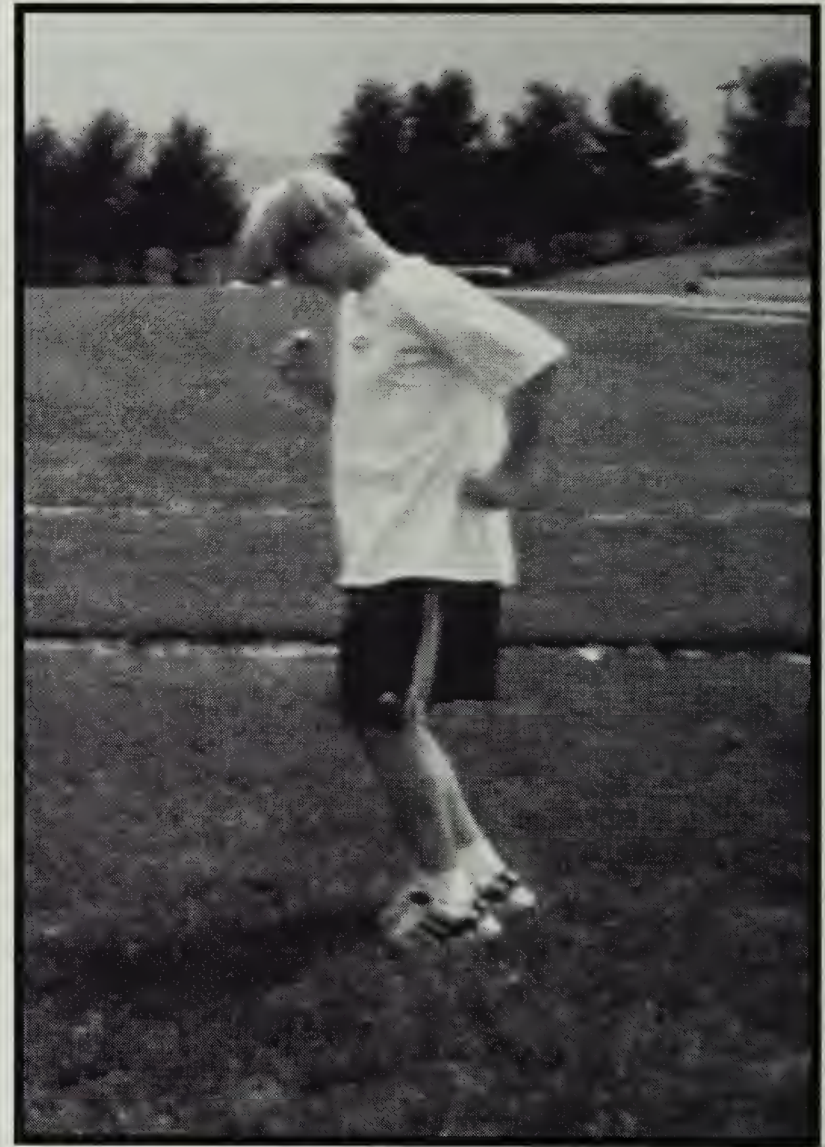

With the help of a few beneficial eighth graders, the team was determined and played to their potential. They knew what they wanted, victory; but although their record fell short, they improved profoundly. "We learned to work together as a team and progressed as a team," said junior Chris Suttle.

Above all, the J.V. players had fun, enjoyed playing, and expressed it. When the players were asked what they enjoyed or remembered most, they all said, "the long lasting friendships which were developed."

Looking Toward Home

While some students got a case of "spring fever", the J.V. Baseball team could be found working hard outside every afternoon enjoying the spring weather. The team faired as well as the weather holding on to a great 7-5 record, a great accomplishment for a semi-new team.

An essential element to a good team is, of course, teamwork. If a team member gets along with his teammates and coaches, he performs much better. By working together and pushing themselves to the limit, they molded themselves into a cohesive unit, ready to fact the challenge that only sports competition can bring. "I feel that my teammates and coaches did their best, and we all worked well together. I hope that next year will be even better," stated freshman Rusty Lane. The team's hard work certainly paid off this year. The team did a great job, had a lot of fun, and is looking forward to pursuing another year of nice ball playing.

Paws for the Pitch

It's the bottom of the seventh, the score is tied, only one out is left as the player steps up to the plate. The pitcher hurls a fastball. Then CRACK, the ball goes speeding out of the park. It's a homerun. The baseball team worked hard for a moment like this.

This year's Varsity Baseball Team was filled with talent. The team was comprised of great hitters, outfielders, and infielders. The team was also a good one because of the large number of returning players. As always, they worked with a great deal of determination and strived to be better than the day before. The benefits of team work and a lot of practice after school and on the weekends were evident in each game.

Though the team got off to a slow start this year due to the field construction of Calfee Ballpark, they still worked very hard to challenge every opposing team. From Franklin County to Tazewell the team worked very hard to push past the other guys and pull out a win.

Awaiting a Run

After many long hours of practice the Lady Cougar Varsity Softball team's season turned into a successful and rewarding experience. "Playing softball is the highlight of my day," says Lea Hallstead.

One obstacle that the team had to overcome was lack of experience, the team was composed of almost all new members, as well as one rookie coach. Second year coach, Gina Miano, and first year coach, Kathryn Myer, helped the team prepare by using numerous drills and exercises, no matter what conditions called for.

Senior Captains Ashley Hurst and Leanne Farlow and Co-Captain Kristen Adkins worked hard this season to complete what the team left unfinished last year. This year the team realized they had to keep their minds in and on the game. They worked hard to keep enthusiasm up by staying close to one another, and it worked. The Lady Cougar's had a wonderful year. Coach Miano commented, "This second year team has shown a tremendous improvement both in physical and mental aspects of the game. That in itself is a definite accomplishment."

AT THE ACES IN ALL THE RIGHT PLACES

There are many newcomers to the tennis team this year like freshmen Daniel Goff, David Hale, Chris Terwilliger, and Chris Curry. After sitting out his sophomore and junior year senior Adam Cox rejoined the team. The team was led by senior captains Mike Turner and Adam Cox. The new head coach, Mike Turner was also an excellent asset to the team.

Although the team was basically rookies in action, they came out with an excellent season. The four freshmen showed great improvement throughout the season, while seniors Turner and Cox lit up the number one and two positions. Andrew Kirk is always showing improvement with his great attitude toward the game and love for the sport. "I really enjoy tennis, it is a non-stop action sport," stated Kirk.

Cougar In the Sky

Today you were here,
Tomorrow you're gone.
Who knows what life you'll carry on,
Behind the golden gates.
Up above the clouds so high,
You're the Cougar in the sky.

You're here with us,
On God's green earth.
Too bad you couldn't be here,
For the next child's birth.

A good friend we'll hold so high,
You're the Cougar in the sky.

Kevin Hanks

A Magnificent Man

A magnificent man from the start,
Lee Cook had always been,
He sacrificed time toward that team,
And assisted them in their wins.

A great dictator he had always been,
A strong leader he was for all,
He always willing to lift us up,
When we took a long hard fall.

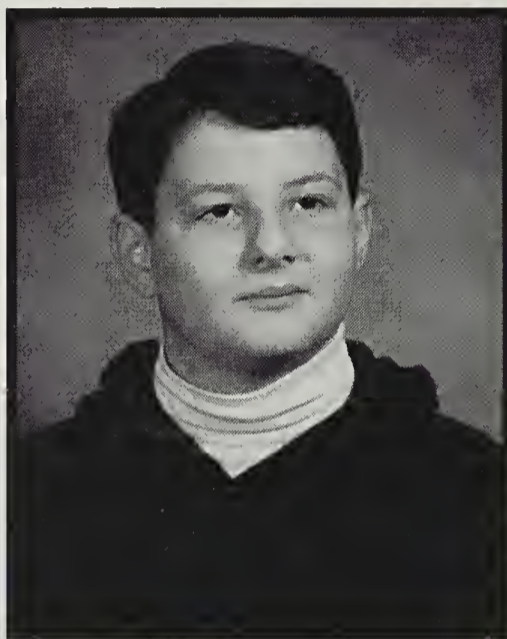

His spirit lifted us all each day,
What a joy to all our hearts,
Even though physically, he is not here,
His spirit will never part.

A strong believer in Christ he was,
And a joyful hand he had,
A smile was always upon his face,
Always willing to take a stand.

God had a reason to take him home,
To live eternally,
To guard over us from night 'til day,
An angel is what we see.

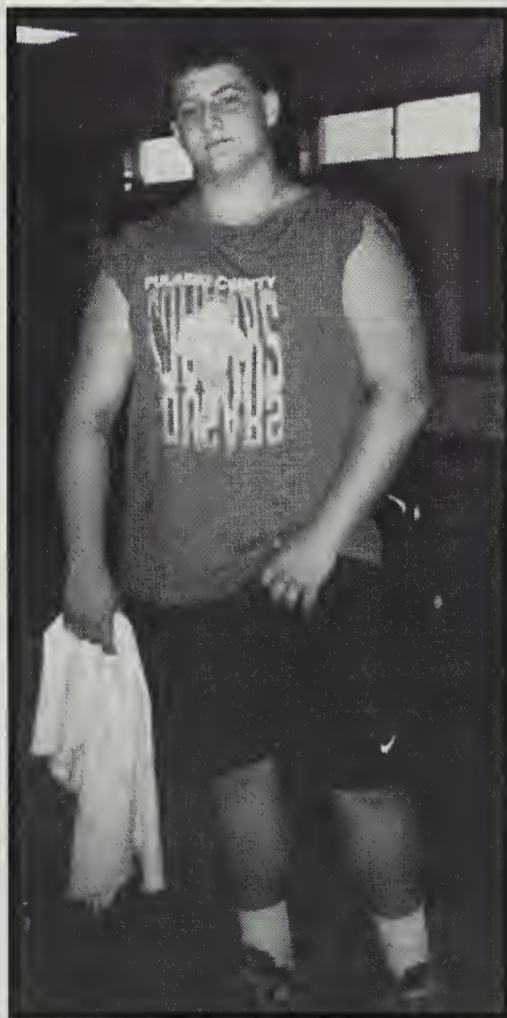

A happier place he's living in,
Watching over us from above,
Looking down on us and sharing,
His everlasting love.

Heather Hawley
William Fleming H.S.

A New Angel Rises to Heaven

A new Angel rises to heaven
Leaving this earth all amiss
Crying, hurting and lonesome without your touch or kiss.

A new Angel rises to heaven
Leaving us all in pain
But your reward in heaven is our earthly gain.

You soar high above us Lee and are seeing what we seek most
To be on that heavenly team coached by our heavenly Host.

You are a new Angel
Your presence on earth is done
Guide us and lead us now,
and give us the strength to carry on.

Snow Angel

*Our Friend-
Dedicated to Lee Cook*

That tragic night
you left this earth
you marked our souls
with pain and hurt.
The life you led of Joy and Fun
one of legend,
a legend won.
Your dancing spirit
of victory has been the true beginning
of your team's wins.
Your loving face
will be missed
but not forgotten.
The mark you left on all our hearts
will make us remember
YOU, our friend, Lee Cook.

To the family and friends of Lee Cook.

In sympathy from
Alisa Goodwin, 9th grade
William Fleming High School

The Game

Down the steps we came,
Awaiting the start of the game.
Like a cat in the night,
On that cold Friday night.

Our enemy trembled,
As we marched down the steps,
Like giants we came.
Lee Cook, sparked our flame.

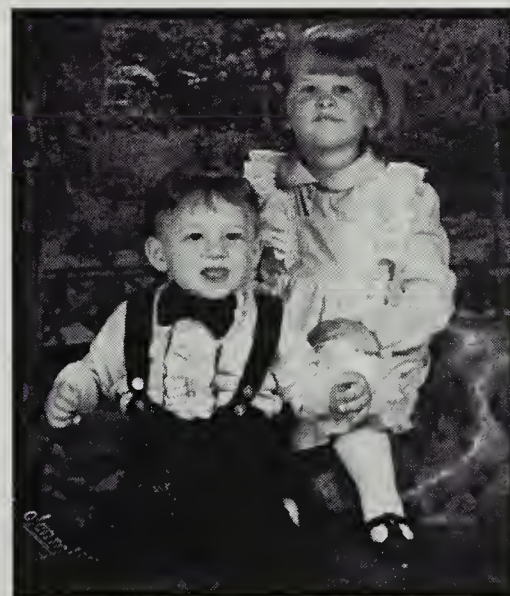

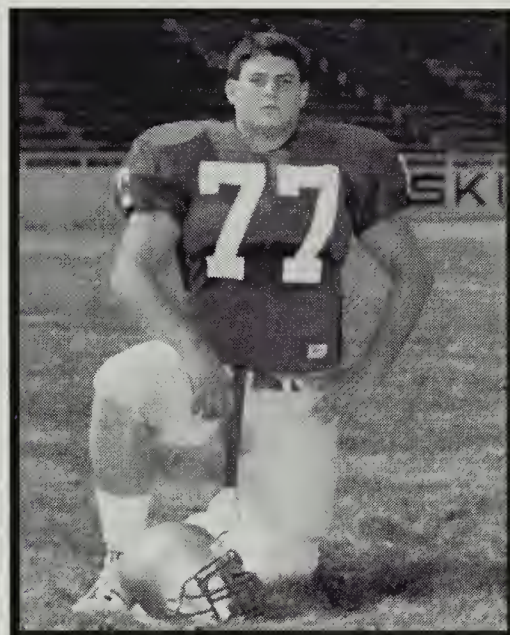

From losing our friend,
we sure did mourn.

The team we were facing wished they had never been born.

After winning the game,
We left the field without any fright.

For Lee's spirit was with us on that cold Friday night.

Wes Brickey

Paws and Paint

From visiting museums and attending art workshops to the diverse cultures of New York and Italy, the Art League participated in many activities. Art shows, car washes, and volunteering at Count Pulaski Day were only some of the events the students took part in. Throughout the year, they strived to not only show off their collection, but to help the community and raise money for their spring trips also. Getting in the club was not easy, however. An Art League member is one who goes above and beyond the normal standards. They must possess a positive attitude, attain an A average, and be one of the top 50 artists in the school based on teacher recommendation. Lauren Huff stated, "It was an honor to be chosen for the Art League. I believe it was very beneficial to my art education."

Casey Fawcett used chalk to express his artistic personality.

Looking Outside the Classroom

A sparked interest in the German language or culture can only grow when becoming a member of the German Club. A student in the club can enjoy broadening his or her German vocabulary, culture, and closing the gaps in our language barriers. One might also learn to enjoy a few German favorites like pretzels and chocolate.

This past summer, students from the club spent two weeks exploring European culture. These students enjoyed visiting London, Paris, parts of Switzerland, Bavaria, Munich, Neuschwanstein Castle, Rothenburg ob der Tauber, and Dachau (a former Nazi Concentration Camp). If one is interested in learning about another country, the German Club is a good place to start.

Priya Acharya, Brooks Hayes, and Sarah Brillheart enjoy the scenery in front of Nymphenburg Palace.

The group makes a stop in Paris, France, on the way to the highlight of their trip, Germany.

Samantha Deguise takes the blood pressure of a HOSA customer.

Pucker up...Erica Stables and Natasha Rodriguez perform mouth-to-mouth on the club's dummies.

Leanne Davis and Coshel Banks demonstrate proper life saving techniques as the class watches.

HOSA Students: Bernadette Altizer, Bobbi Angle, Linda Austin, Kassandra Blankenship, Robin Blankenship, Amber Blevins, Crystal Blevins, Crystal Boyd, Leann Davis, Samantha Deguise, Amanda Dishon, Casey Freeman, Chasity Gravley, Cindy Gravley, Eugene Gregory, Tanesha Harvey, Kristi Hodges, April Honaker, Deborah Horton, Richard Johnson, David Lovern, Michele Lytton, Jennifer McCoy, Chasity Miller, Angie Montgomery, Nicholas Morris, Cassie Morse, Katie Neely, Amber Orren, Lyryssa Powell, Mellissa Quesenberry, Matthew Rakes, Thomas Rice, Natasha Rodriguez, Keona Shelor, Sally Simpkins, Dayna Spence, Myranda Steele, Crystal Viar, Kelli Walters, Julie Ward, Miranda Webb, Misty Weiss, Megan Wright, Barbara Yopp.

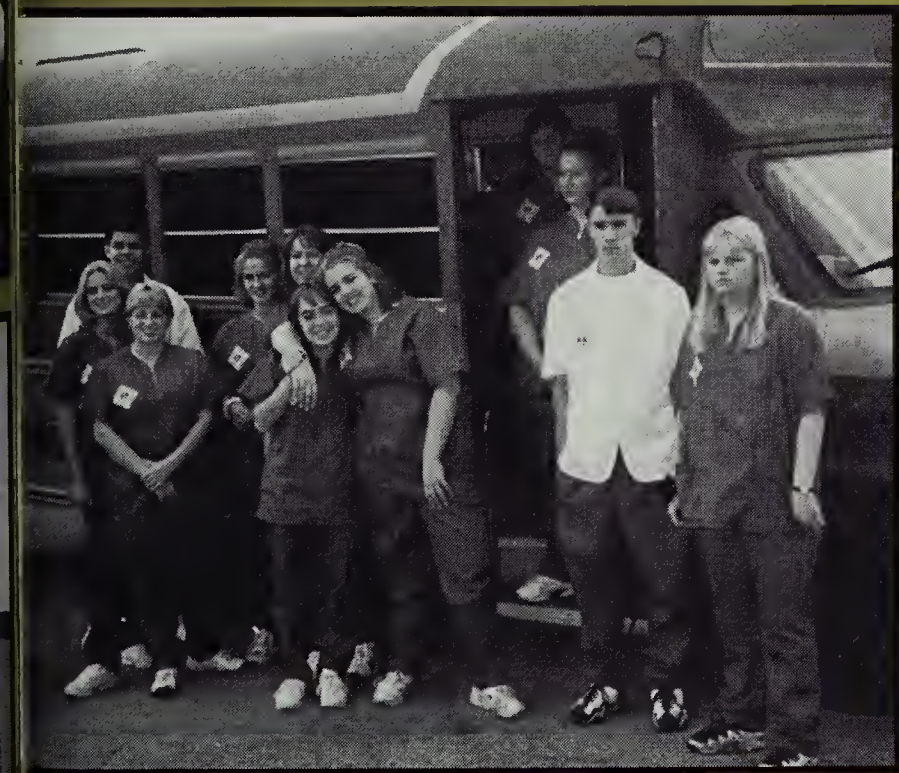

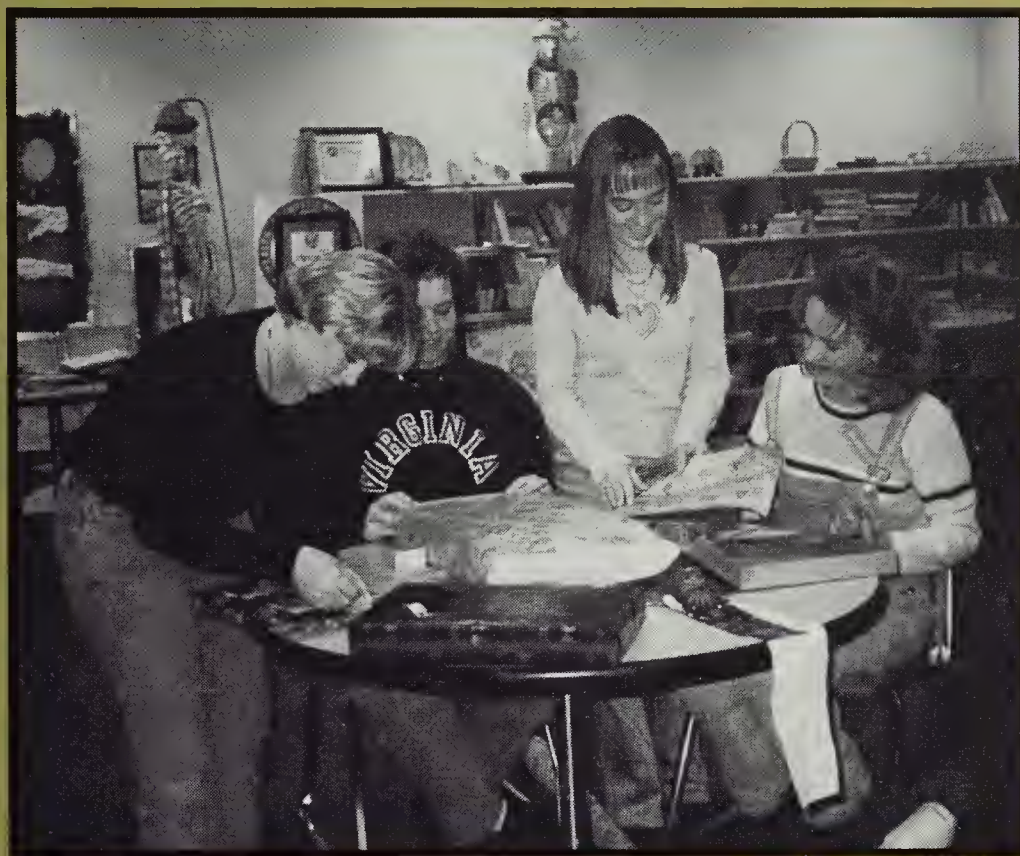

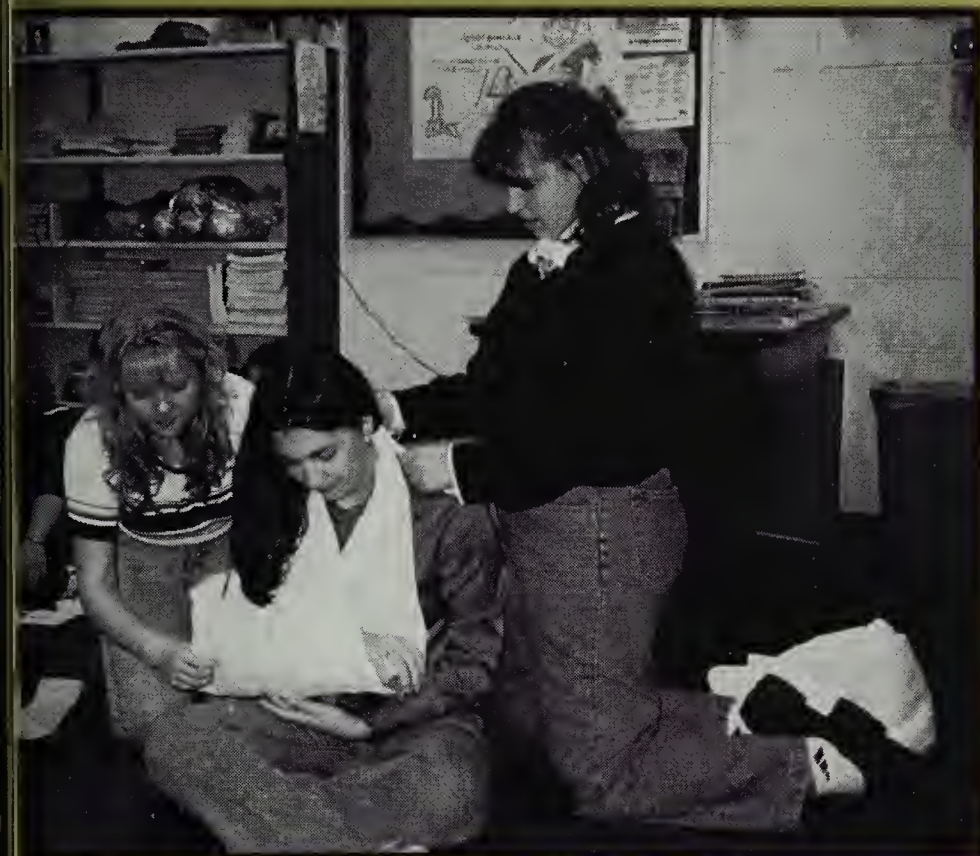

Mrs. Sparks enjoys the annual banquet with other HOSA members.

Positively Healthy

Out of the many clubs and organizations offered every year, one prominently stands out with its positive charitable attitude and friendly atmosphere. The Health Occupations Students of America went above and beyond in such activities as volunteering at neighboring retirement homes and raising money through the Make-A-Wish Foundation. By teaching the members processes about important medical techniques, the HOSA club prepares many students for the future, as well. Kristi Hodges remembered, "HOSA takes me step by step, helping me to learn exactly how to go out in the world of health careers." Everyone agreed with Kristen Lilly when she commented, "This club helps your self-esteem and goal-making skills. I love it!"

Candis Cook
Bekkah Warburton

Members of the HOSA club do a little last minute Christmas gift wrapping. Jenna McCoy remembered, "One of the best Christmas presents is knowing you helped out a family in need."

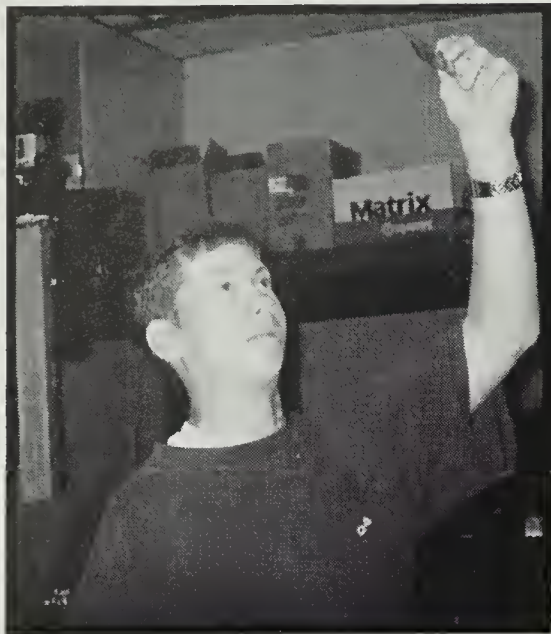

Working hard, Mandy Moore volunteers her time at the local hospital. "I love the hand-on experiences we receive by working right there with the nurses!"

"How did you break it?"
Edge Linkous, Amber Or-ter, and Megan Wright practice creating a splint.

What a group! The HOSA members load the bus to go to their weekly hospital trip.

Looking Towards the Technological Future

Matt Akers studies a negative in Communications Systems Technology.

Mr. Aries takes a minute to work out some problems on a graphics computer.

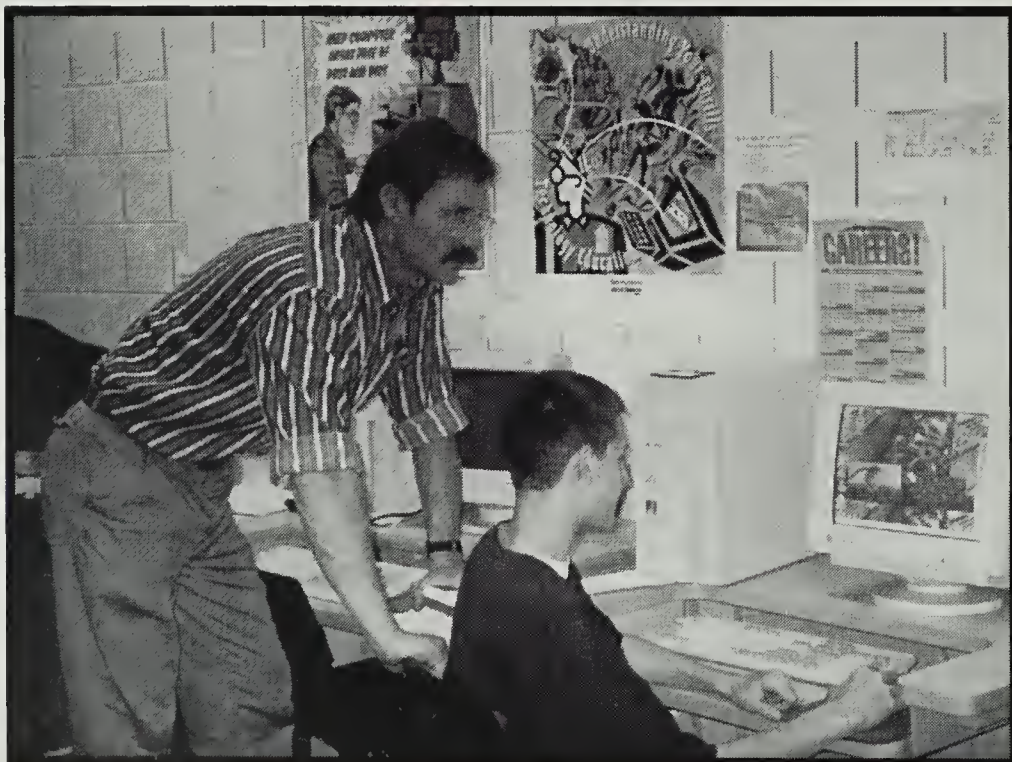

Casey Burns adds the finishing touches on her airbrush assignment.

Technology Students of America, TSA, is made up of a diverse group of individuals who have one thing in common; they are all interested in some aspect of the advancing technological fields. Students in this club participate in challenging tasks such as photography, printing, and graphic design.

Mr. Weschke, TSA's sponsor, plays a key role in teaching and developing student's skills. A variety of activities such as designing business cards, making personal tablets, and developing film grab students' attention. Learning becomes a fun and rewarding experience when students are able to put their technical and creative side to the test.

Amanda Fehr

Mr. Weschke watches as Eric Sumner boots up the computer to begin his project.

Pauses for the Camera

The Video Club is made up of a group of creative and talented individuals, who have a flare for all aspects of television production. By creating and editing their own videos, they learn first hand, the behind the scene processes that most never get to experience. "The ability to use professional and state of the art equipment makes the Video Club fun as well as challenging," commented Johnny Hash.

The Video Club has made several videos such as the Cougar Football highlight video and the Homecoming video. All proceeds, other than the cost of equipment, have gone to charitable causes. They have become one of the the major contributors to the Lee Cook Scholarship Fund as well as sponsoring needy students during Christmas. "Knowing that I helped make someone else's Christmas better made mine more enjoyable," said Jason Dean.

While the club focuses on many technical fields of video production, they also focus on the realism of it. By capturing images throughout the school, they provide lasting memories that will survive long after this year.

Looking for Opportunities

Leadership, Experience, Opportunity are the focal points, as well as the benefits from all club endeavors. From Walking for Diabetes to Club lock-ins, LEO members formed everlasting friendships while striving for excellence.

In its third year of existence the LEO Club membership has almost doubled. Sponsored by the Dublin Lions Club and advised by Mr. Joel Stuart, the club is able to participate in activities throughout the community. Mr. Stuart said, "I am pleased to see that the LEO Club has sparked such a great interest in the school. It is really great to see so many students interested in serving their community."

Throughout the year, LEO's could be seen out and about in the area exhibiting their interest in the community. Weekly visits to Highland Manor Adult Home, carrying packages at the Dublin Flea Market, and volunteering at the Special Olympics are just a few of the many activities that the club participated in. Brent Surber said, "Carrying packages at the Flea Market was a lot of fun. It was a great bonding experience for the club members." Bussing the holiday season, LEO's spent $1200 at Wal-Mart on Christmas gifts for the Headstart program as well as treats for the Pulaski Christmas parade.

With the help of Mr. Stuart, President Becca Conner worked to involve the club in as many events as possible. "This was the best year LEO Club has had thus far, but I can only hope that it will continue to improve," says Stuart. Although this year graduated the sophomores the club began with, there is no doubt that the LEO club members will be seen throughout the community leading and serving for years to come.

The FCA has helped not only the student body, but also the community, throughout the year. Fellowship of Christian Athletes, sponsored by Mr. Scott Frye, helped with the Headstart Christmas party along with many other community involved events. Their main goal was to spread Christian beliefs and spirit to others through their good deeds. Amanda Woods said, "In our meetings, we discuss how to spread the Christian ministry to young people."

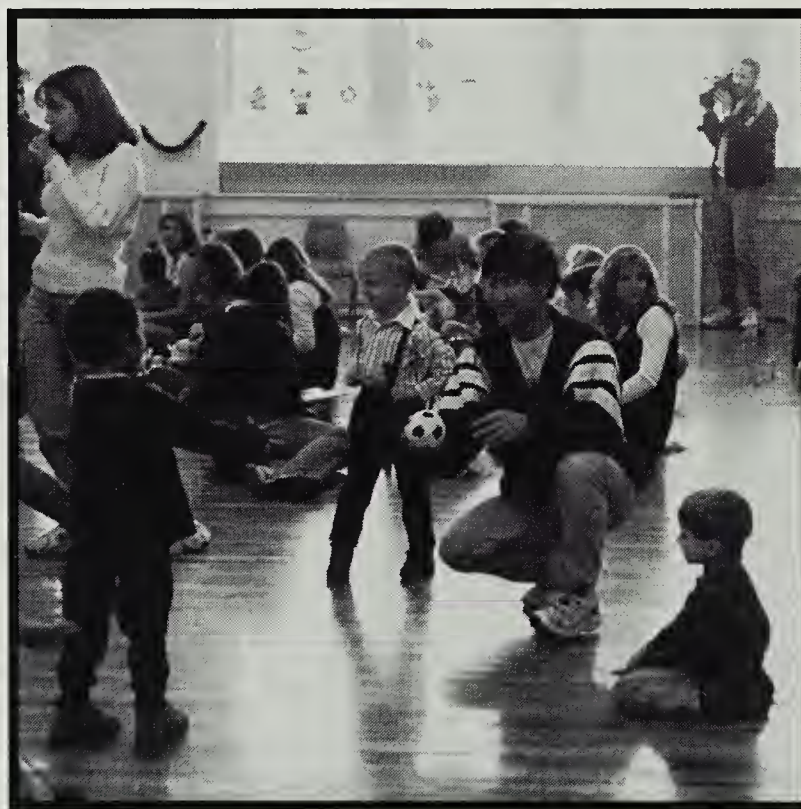

"I love the Christian spirit and the helpful community events we participate in; it gives the community a positive outlook about today's youth," stated Tiffany White. Besides passing out toys at the Headstart Christmas party, the club supported the Special Olympics and attended many Christian concerts. The FCA allows all members to participate in fellowship with peers while also using their club to help the community, student body, and others in need.

Pausing for Prayer

Students for Christ was a club that allowed students to join in fellowship with other's. The idea of SFC was to help the student body as well as others in the community with their Christian attitudes. These Christian students are involved in "See You at the Pole" and "National Day of Prayer." Through these, they enjoyed leading others in prayer and devotions. Mr. Jerry Jones, the club advisor, helped lead the club meetings along with president, Marcus Harrison, and vice-president, Faith Griffith. Guest speakers worked to further the students' education of Christ during their club meetings, as the members strived to grow and help others grow in their religious beliefs.

Pauses for History

The African American History Club, AAHC, had a very busy year. Their active schedule required each member to give his or her complete dedication. The participants displayed their willingness to serve as well as their desire to work together as a group.

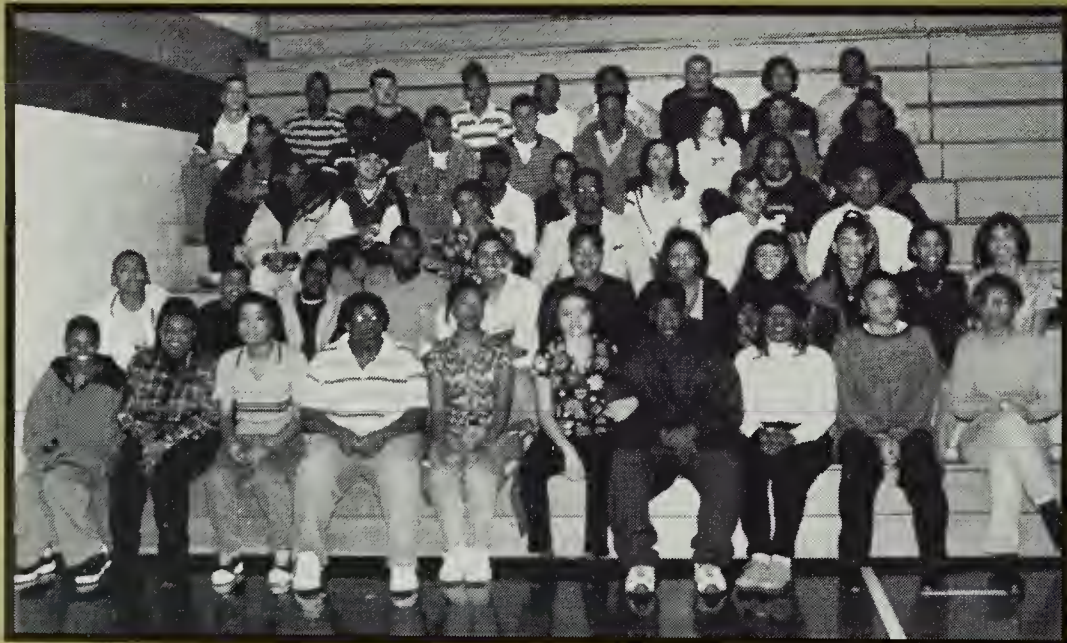

The club allows the members to be exposed to their history and culture. This is completed through group meeting and special guest speakers. While the club held most of it's meetings on club days, some out of school time was required. AAHC held numerous out of school gatherings to complete their various activities. Club member Dorian Hendricks stated, "I enjoy learning about my black history as well as spending time with my fellow club members." The AAHC was successful in helping expose it's members to their history and culture in ways that they might not have other wise experienced.

Paws and Check

The challenge of the game and the triumph of conquering it is the feeling that draws people to the Chess Club. The members spend their after school sessions practicing to gain these accomplishments. The team was up to the challenge, however. Five of the team's players traveled to Woodbridge, Virginia to compete in the State Chess Championships. They defeated two major magnet schools and other scholastic teams to win the State Championship for the 13th time in the last 19 years. Ming Chan, a freshman, placed second individually. King Chan, a senior, placed seventh, and Todd Southern, a freshman placed eighth. The team had a great year and hopes to continue it winning record for a long time to come.

Looking for Careers

Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) provided quality educational experiences for students in leadership, teamwork, citizenship, and character development. This club built and reinforced self-confidence, work attitudes, and communication, while emphasizing total quality at work. High ethical standards and pride in the dignity of the students' work was also stressed.

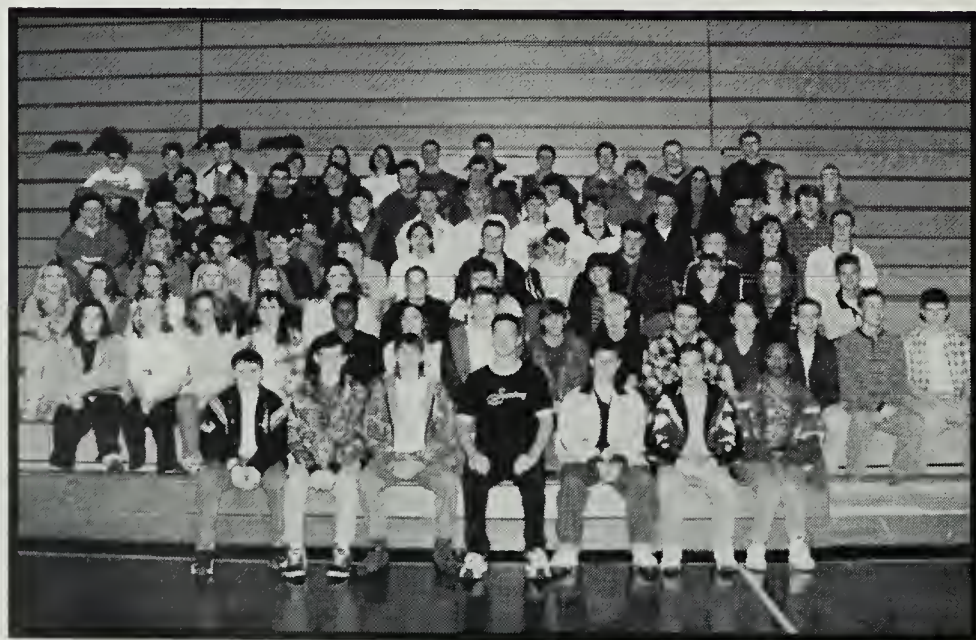

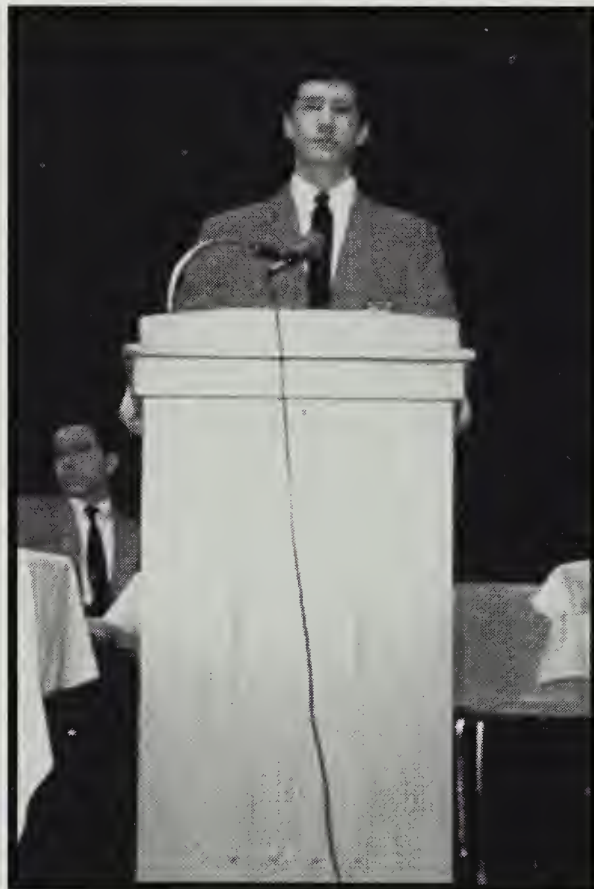

With the supervision of the VICA club adviser, Mr. Peter Anderson, the seven club officers lead the meetings of the largest club in the school. Many of the club's members competed during the local VICA competition on February 11, 1998 and several went on to compete at the District level.

This club prepared and trained many students for a career in Auto Mechanics, Auto Body, Cosmetology, Building Trades, Masonry, Printing, Electricity, Drafting, and more. VICA helped prepare students for life outside the classroom through job training. It provides educational experiences that will truly last a lifetime.

"Here's Looking at You"

Forensics is a form of activity that gives students a chance to gain confidence and performance experience. The Forensics Club members are given the opportunity to express themselves through many different types of literary works. Use of creative endeavors can provide these students to develop into great writers.

Under the sponsorship of Susan Jones, the Forensics Team became very successful this year. Alyson Carter and Eric Sorheim won first and second place respectively, in their fields of competition. The 2 related students they had in their club meetings and competitions showed the students had a variety of ideas about writing and to carry them a long way.

Paws, Let's Go Outing

The Outing Club is the largest club that does not have a related credited class. The carisma and adventurous spirit of the club draws people in. Their activities include caving, rock climbing, skiing, and backpacking. The club sponsor, Dave Carroll, does his best in providing the students with the opportunity to enjoy nature and engage in challenging outdoor activities.

Chris Suttle said, "Rock climbing requires strategy and maneuvering skills to find the right spot to hold, and that is something that comes naturally to me. I enjoy climbing because it always offers a different challenge." Although some go for the challenge, others go for the view. Misty Hughes said she enjoyed caving and backpacking because she, "loves nature and likes to experience the great outdoors." This club is always heading out to find another great adventure.

Senior Commitment

The group of students that is charged with the organization of numerous school and community projects throughout the year is known as the Senior Steering Committee. By being a part of the SSC, a student demonstrates his or her dedication to the preservation of stewardship.

Each year, these devoted individuals tackle projects and make decisions on a variety of subjects such as the planning of the graduation ceremony, including the process of choosing the guest speaker and planning the senior picnic. The SSC is also responsible for the annual road clean-ups, the senior t-shirt design, and the senior motto. Brian Clymer stated, "It was fun to be with your friends and help your school and community at the same time." "Under the direction of efficient and well-organized leadership, the SSC is able to accomplish many tasks," responded Brent Surber.

Looking Toward Leadership

The Student Council Association is an organization that is founded on leaders sustained by responsibility. It is a group of individuals elected by their peers and intended to be an acting voice for the entire student body and inform others of the decisions made at their meetings.

Graham Gravely, student body president, said, "I think the morning announcements are a serious part of the day because they include information that is beneficial to all students." His idea is apparent each day through his professional attitude toward his job.

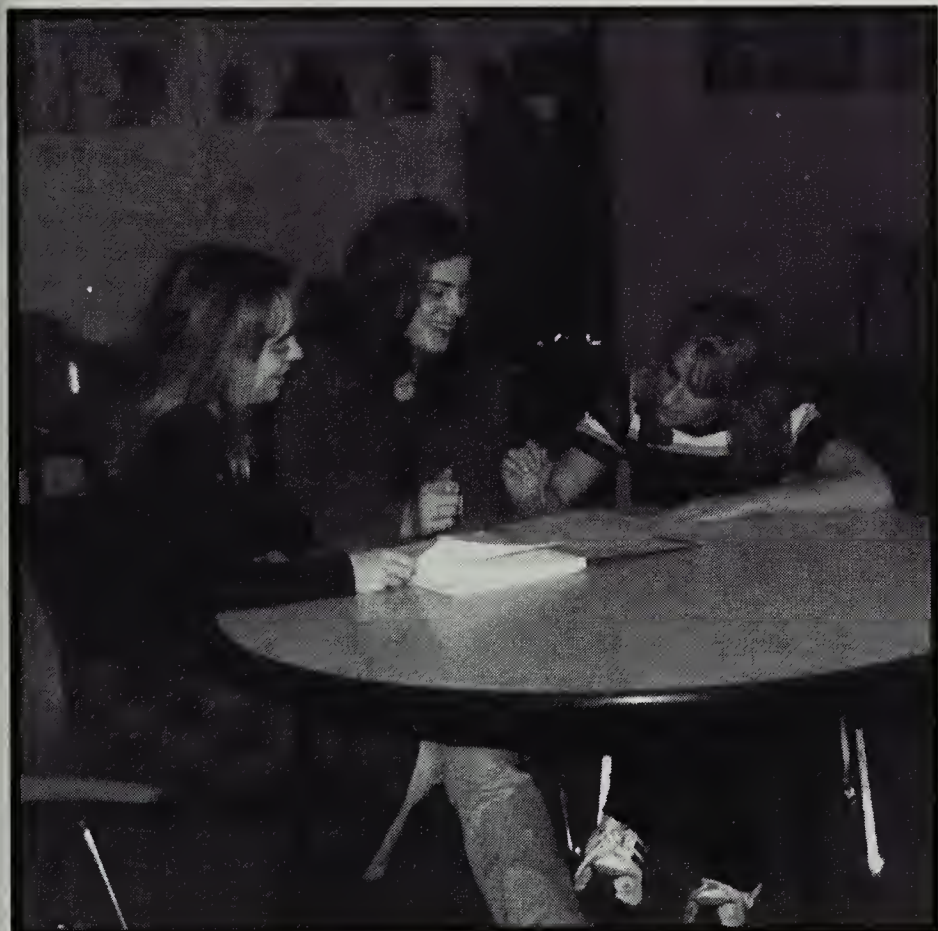

The SCA activities have ranged anywhere from making arrangements for the Homecoming Dance to collecting cans for local services. Kelly Hodges said, "Homecoming was a success this year because everyone had a good time." These activities, such as the canned food drives are always a help to local organizations, and continually show how the student body strives to help the community. With the leadership given by the SCA, all of this is made possible.

The Future Farmers of America had an exciting and extremely busy year. From day one members have been in everything from competitions to their annual fund raiser. Their year started off when they elected new officers to head the school year. After the officers were elected they held the New River Federation Picnic at Claytor Lake State Park where most members attended. All of the officers attended an officer's State Fair, where they viewed farm exhibits, enjoyed the fair midway, and went to a country music concert.

The FFA members took part in a variety of contests that included dairy judging, livestock judging, public speaking, small engine repair, agriculture mechanics, tractor driving, and parliamentary procedures. The parliamentary procedure team had daily practices to prepare for their competitions where they compete with area schools. "Being in Parliamentary Procedures was one of my most memorable times being in the FFA," commented Beth Atkins.

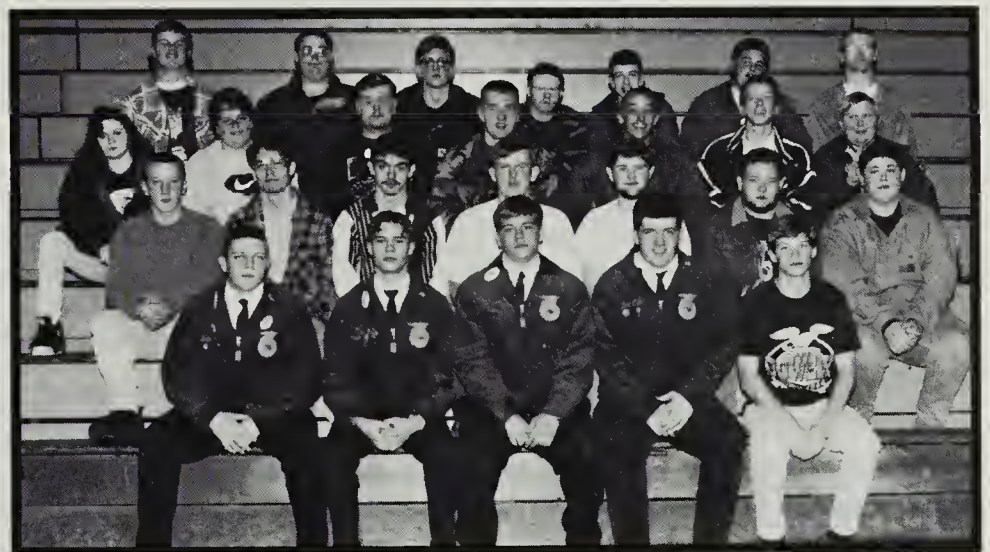

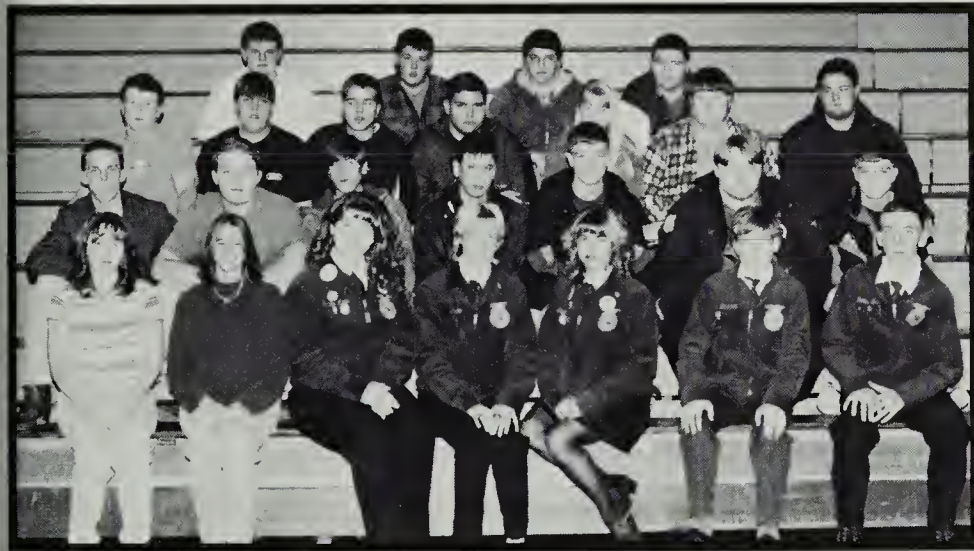

The National FFA Convention was held in Kansas City, Missouri. There, five of the club's officers made new friends, learned important skills, and had a lot of fun. Jenny Lyons stated, "My most favorite memory of the FFA would definitely have to be our trip to Kansas City. It was definitely an experience I will never forget. Meeting friends who had the same interest as we have was great." Wrapping up the whole year's activities was the parent-member banquet. It was a grand finale to a wonderful year full of activities.

Buzz, Paws, and Answer

As the Emcee addresses the question to the MACC team from Pulaski County, the audience watches as the members discuss the answer. Luckily, the chosen answer was correct and five points was added to their score.

Members of the Mountain Academic Competition Conference choose the subject that they feel they can contribute to from English, Math, Science, or Social Studies. Participating students may also choose Around which is comprised of a variety of subjects. The teams practice once a week from January until the end of their season, in addition to their weekly meets. The teams work together by training members to recollect information they have previously learned as quickly as possible. Each correct answer is worth five points and if a team answers incorrectly before the question is read completely, they lose two points. There are two rounds to every subject. The first is the conferring round. Here, the players have the opportunity to quietly discuss the answer to the question before the time runs out. The second is the toss-up round, where players answer the questions as quickly as they can, individually. By attending competitions, the participants learn some facts from other teams, as well as becoming experts in their certain subject.

Mrs. Freeman, the Social Studies MACC coach, takes a moment out of practice to joke around with Matt Mansell.

Laura Vipperman quizzes members of the English MACC team for an upcoming meet.

Mr. Wooten asks a question to some of his star Math members.

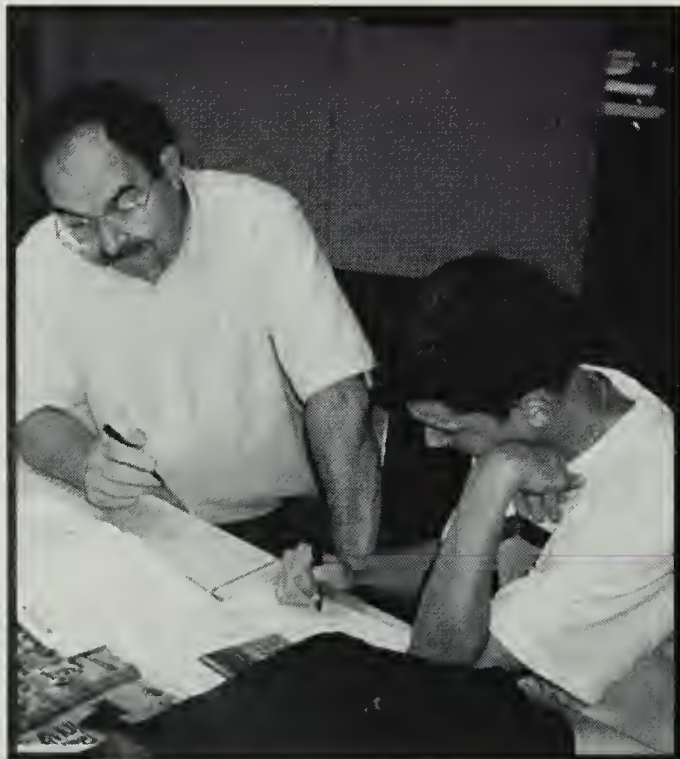

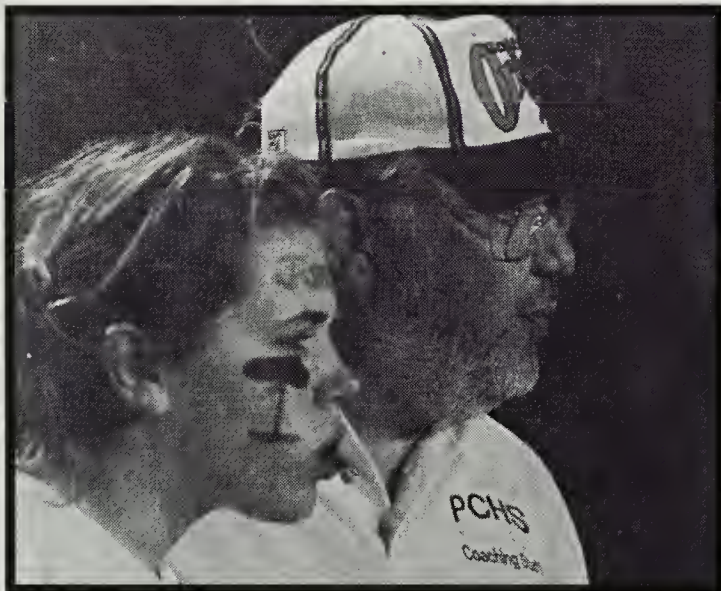

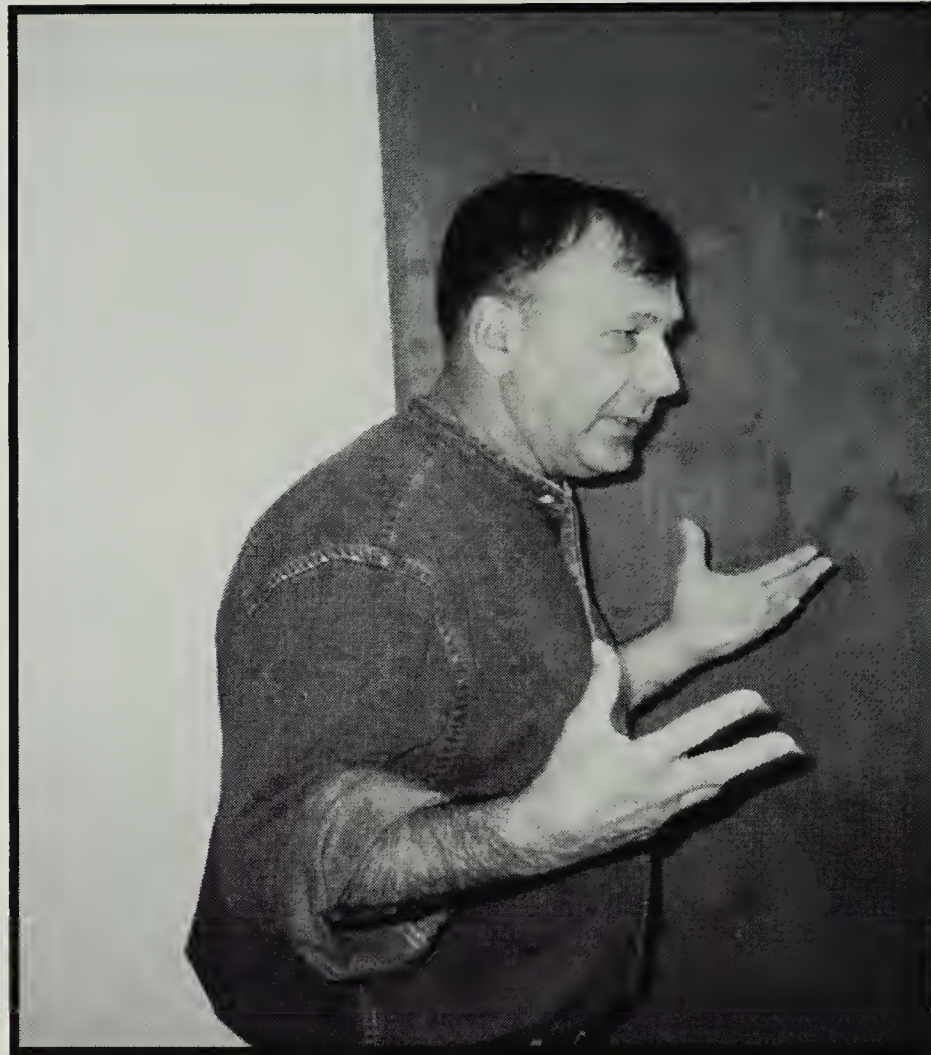

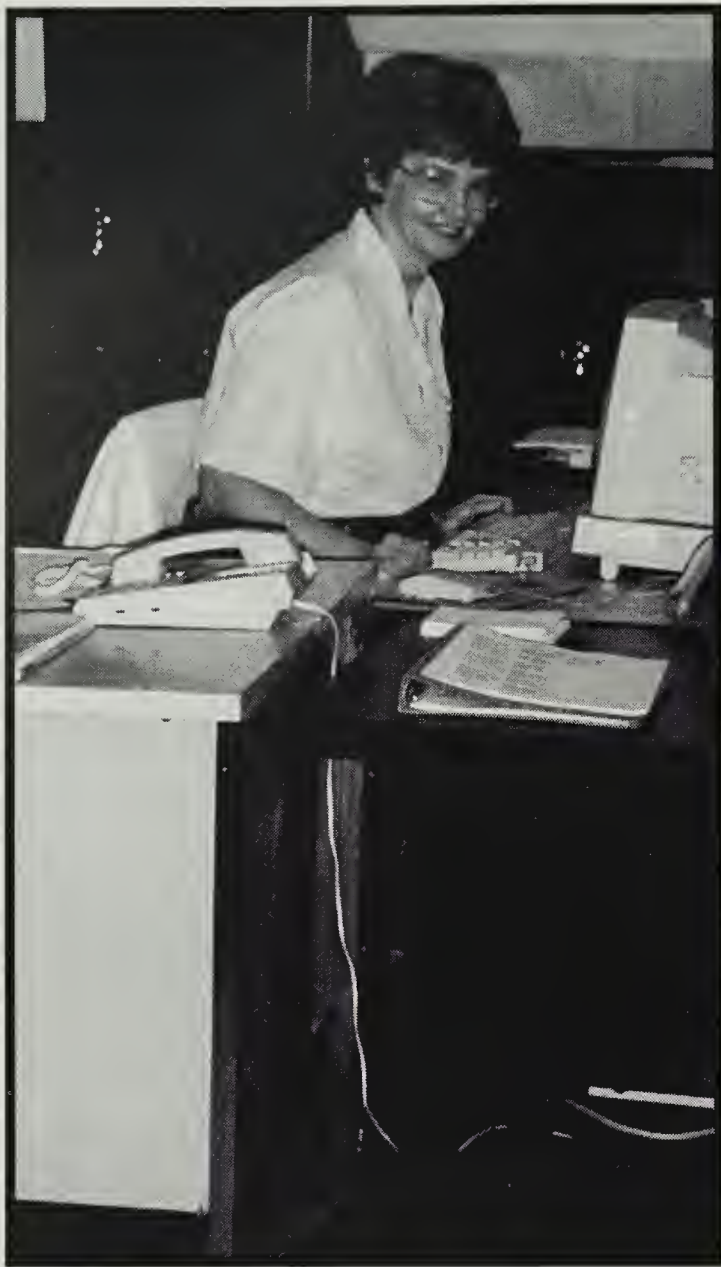

Matt Mansel and Kristin Smith concentrate to the question given, while Tige Saltz attempts to break the tension.

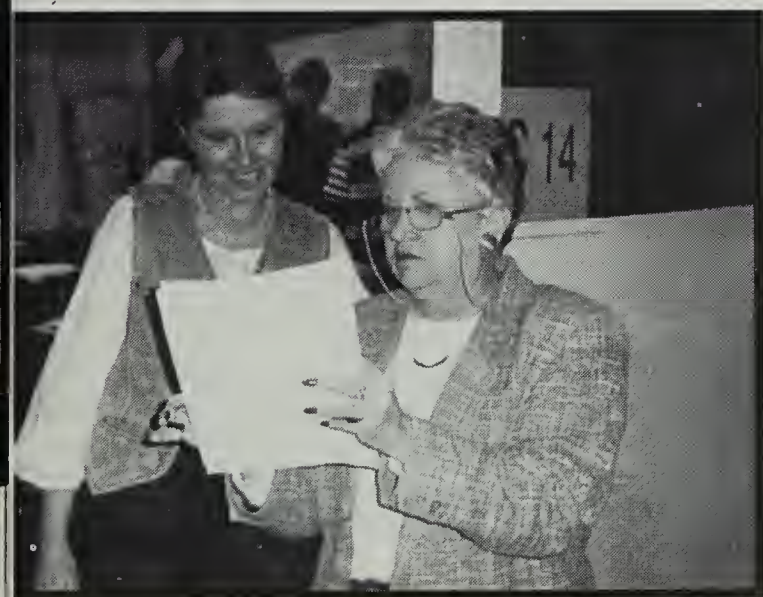

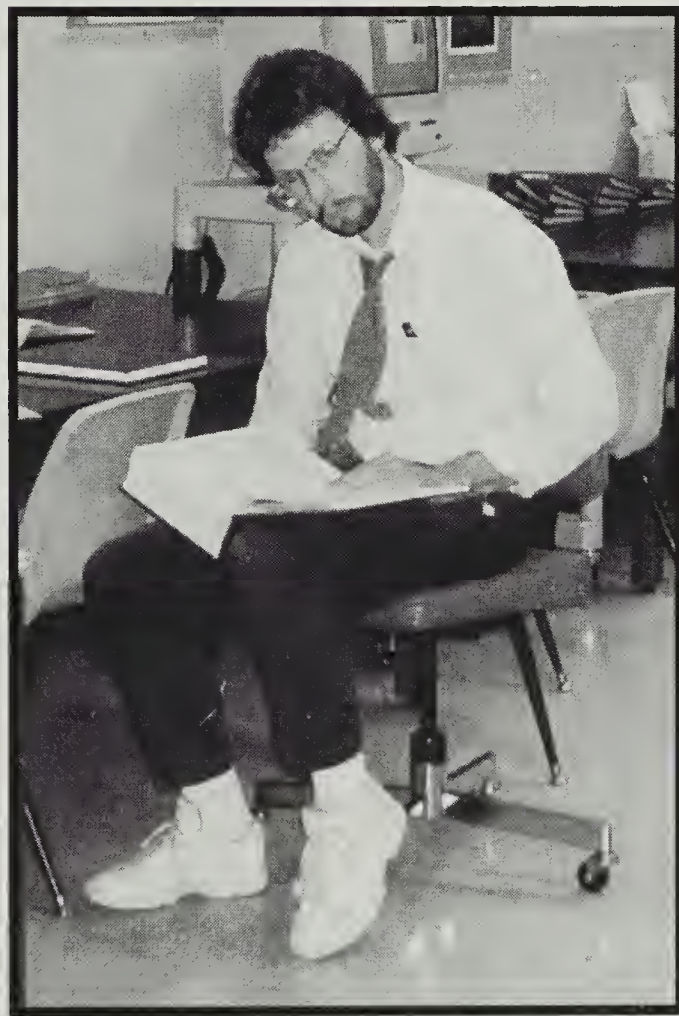

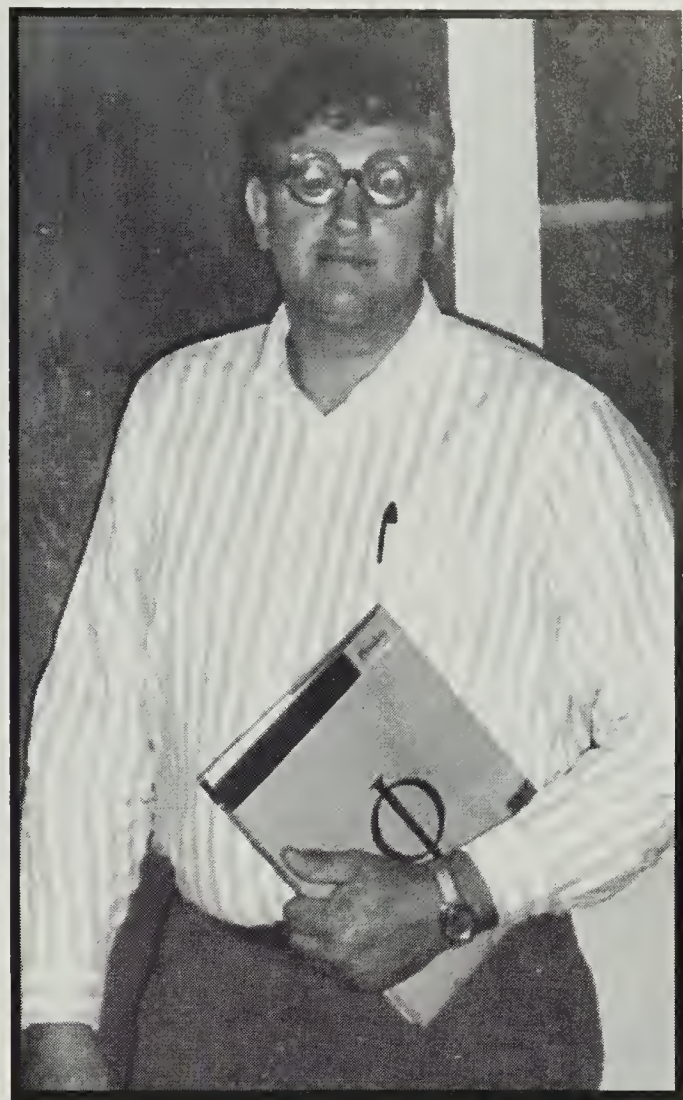

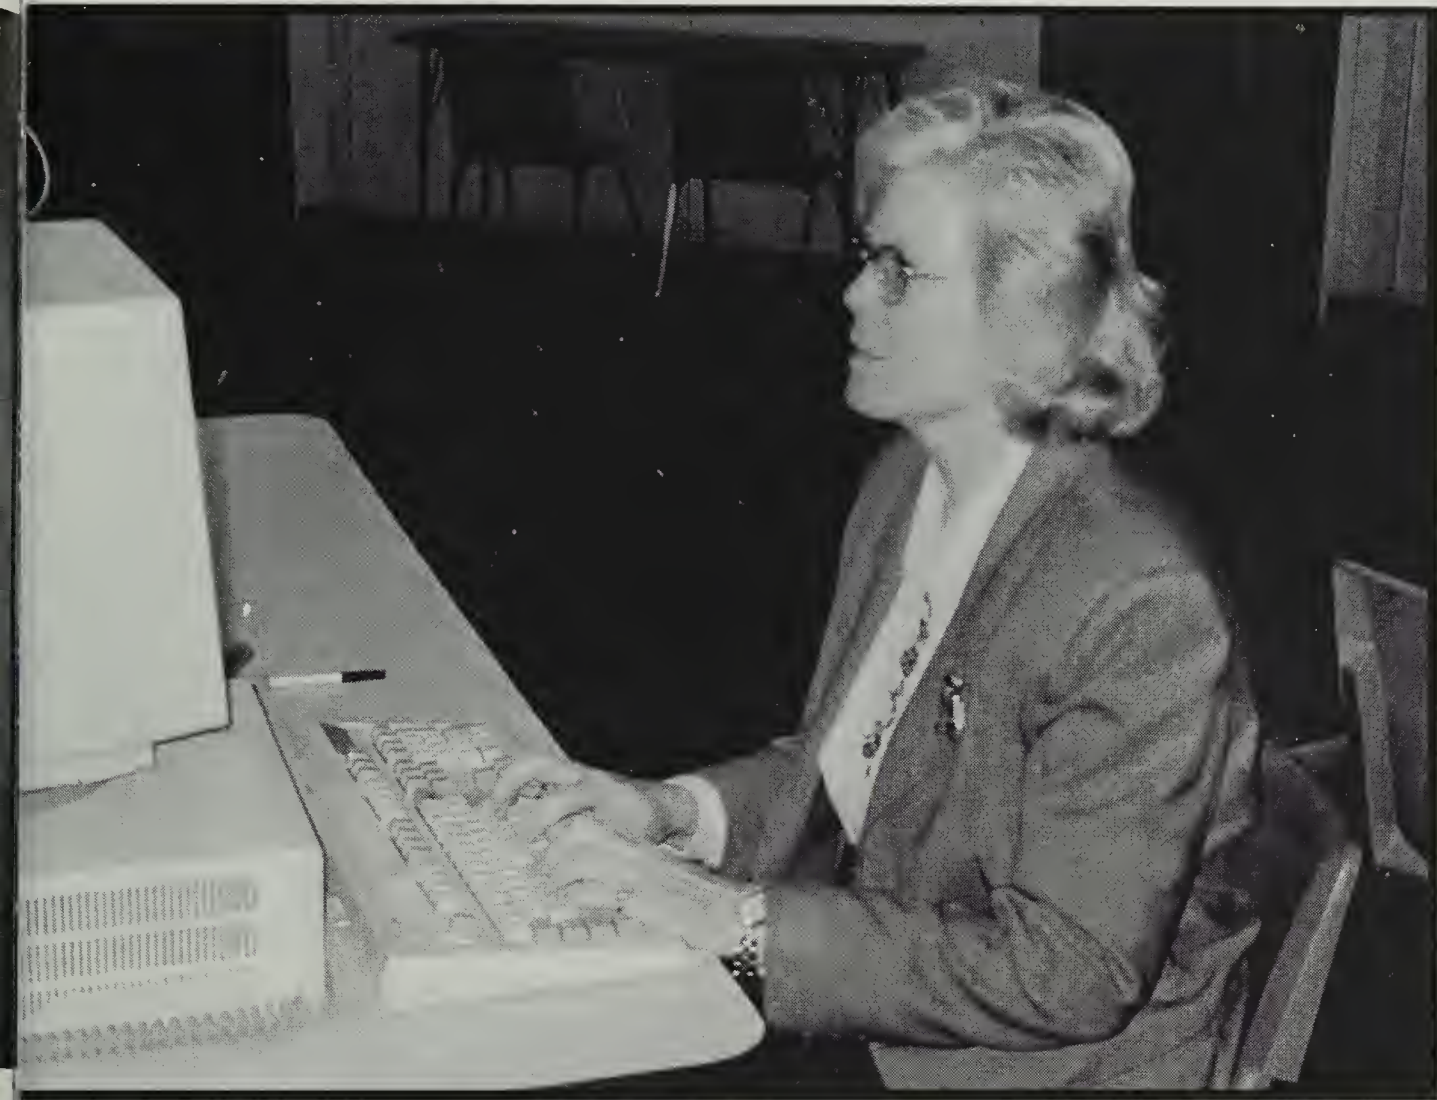

Adam Turman, Priya Acharya, and Brandon Lindsey try to name the capitol of Zimbabwe.

Pauses and Look

The rush of the world surrounds each individual as high school years progress, and before it is noticed accomplishments have been made and opportunities have been missed. The hectic world does not allow for the reflection of the passing time. It was in the chosen theme that everyone hoped to capture the highlights of the past year. In the completion of this book everyone felt that this was so accomplished. However, this book should be a media between your memories, a link to provoke those that you hold dear to you. It is the desire of each of us that you will enjoy the contents of this book as much as we enjoyed compiling it for you all.

‘Without reflection we see and remember nothing.’

The 1998 COUGAR PINNACLE was published by Taylor Publishing Company in Knoxville, Tennessee. Eight hundred and fifty copies were printed. The cover was designed by the yearbook editors and Taylor Publishing.

Body copy and captions were set in Rinna. Headlines were set in various fonts and sizes.

Ads were produced by Allison Cox and Kristen Stauss with the assistance of all businesses who contributed to the PINNACLE. The in plant customer service advisor was Jerry Steely. The Taylor Representative was Ben Smith.

Members of the staff would like to thank Mrs. Erin Wigginton, Ms. Suzanne Steele, and Mr. Bert Weschke, without whose help this yearbook would have never been published. Also a special thanks to Kim Nelson from the SOUTHWEST TIMES. The PINNACLE Editors for this year were Ginger Glenn, Allison Cox, Kristen Stauss, Becca Conner, Star Lester, Janna Van Dyke, Laura Linkous, and Rebekkah Warburton.

The 1998 COUGAR PINNACLE is copyrighted and cannot be reproduced without the written permission of Erin Wigginton, or an editor.
